WHAT DEAD GAMBLER DECLARED PROTECTION BY THE POLICE COST

NEW YORK, July 16.—Here is the scale of prices for gambling protection by the police as given to District Attorney Whitman by Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, who was killed early today:

Initial fee for being allowed to open a gambling house for roulette, faro, etc.	$500
Monthly gambling house payment	$300
Initial fee for opening an afternoon pool room	$500
Monthly payment to police for pool room	$300
Crap rooms (small), per month	$50
Crap rooms (large), per month	$250
Poker clubs (small), per month	$50
Poker rooms (large), per month	$100

The total protection revenue per year turned over to the authorities, according to Rosenthal's computation, is $4,000,000 per annum for Greater New York.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Within ten hours after the assassination of Herman Rosenthal, a wealthy gambler, in front of the Hotel Metropole, early today because of revelations he had made in regard to gamblers' tribute for police protection, the authorities had two men under arrest and two others were being detained as material witnesses. Louis Libby, owner and driver of the car in which the assassins escaped, was under arrest, charged with murder; Libby's partner, William Shapire, also was held.

"Jack" Clark, a professional gambler, and Charles Gallagher, a hotel singer, were detained as witnesses. Inspector Hogies, in charge of the detectives, said there was no doubt in the minds of the police about Libby being the man who drove the murderers away from the scene of the crime in a high-powered gray-bodied motor car.

Just before noon George S. Dougherty, second deputy commissioner of police, took Libby to his office of Coroner Feinberg, where an inquest into the death of Rosenthal was held. He was remanded. Before this the automobile owner had been subjected to the third degree.

No more dramatic murder ever took place in this country than the killing of Rosenthal by sharp shooters in the most conspicuous spot in America, and one of the most conspicuous in the world—Long Acre Square. The assassination was at 2 o'clock this morning—the hour when the cafes are busiest with the throng that never sees the sun rise.

"They Will Get Me."

District Attorney Whitman asserted Rosenthal had told him yesterday that he expected to be killed by the police because of revelations he had made.

"Rosenthal came to see me yesterday," said the district attorney. "He said he did not want to go away without going

HUBERT LATHAM, AVIATOR SLAIN BY RHINOCEROS

LATHAM KILLED BY "RHINO"

PARIS, July 16.—A dispatch received by the family of Hubert Latham, the French aviator, today, states that he has been killed while rhinoceros hunting near Brazaville in the Congo. Latham was one of the best known aviators in the field, and was popular at the international contests held in America and England.

According to further intelligence, Latham was killed on June 7 by a bull rhinoceros. As the hunting party was in the midst of an almost impenetrable jungle, a long delay ensued before the message could be got to a cable station. The Governor-General of French Equatorial Africa, Henri Merlin, in telegraphing the news to the Minister of Colonies, added the following details:

"Latham was out with a number of natives. He shot the animal at close range. Enraged by pain, the rhinoceros charged and Latham was unable to get out of the way in time. He was gored and trampled to death."

Latham went to Central Africa some months ago after his physician had told him he had but a year to live.

"Well—if I've got but a year left of life," said Latham, "I had as well spend it recklessly."

Latham was a consumptive. First he tried flying, and his daring made him world-famous. For pure daredevil work he was one of the greatest of all aviators. Soon aerial flights palled on him. So he decided on something more exciting and more reckless.

Broken in health and determined to take all the chances opportunity offered, Latham sailed for Africa. After his departure his friends heard little of him until the message came bringing tidings of the death he had defied for the last year.

Latham's career was remarkable, cut short in the middle though it was. His youth he spent in travel in the gay cities of Europe. He was independently wealthy and spent his money as carelessly as he did the last year of his life.

ANNEX TO CITY HALL HELD UP

Judge Loring in the Supreme Court today issued an injunction restraining the city of Boston from carrying out its contract with Wells Brothers of New York for the construction of the new City Hall annex in Court square. Although the bid of Wells Brothers was $68,000 less than the next lowest, master builders of Boston objected because the New York firm did not file, as the law requires, a list of sub-contractors. Judge Loring held today that in failing to file this list, no open competition was had, and that the city stood to lose largely in costs of construction. The court decision halts the construction of the annex that was to have cost the city $716,000 under the Wells contract.

STANLEY COMMITTEE FAVORS STEEL SUIT

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Members of the Stanley Steel Committee at an executive committee meeting reached a tentative agreement that all of the members of the committee would approve the filing of a suit for the dissolution of the Steel Corporation. On other points the Democratic and Republican members have so far failed to reach an agreement, and preparation is under way for the submission of both a majority and minority report.

THE WEATHER.

Generally fair and cooler tonight. Wednesday fair and continued cooler weather with moderate northeast winds.

Up to 9 a. m. the wind blew southwest, then shifted to the northwest. It was warm today because of the humidity, which is registered at 79 degrees, or 9 degrees above normal.

The hottest July 16 on record was in 1900, 95; the coolest was in 1878 with 54.

LATHAM PARKER'S 1904 FUND $700,000

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 16.—August Belmont, member of the Democratic National Committee of 1904, told the Senate sub-committee investigating campaign expenses today that his personal contribution to the campaign fund may have totalled $250,000 and in addition to that he advanced to the committee $50,000, all but $8,000 of which was returned to him.

He was unable to state definitely the total of the fund, but if he should guess at it he would place it at $600,000 or $700,000. Belmont, who was a member of the executive committee, declared he had nothing to do with the Congressional campaign of 1906 or the national campaign of 1908. He told the committee that Henry Havemeyer, the sugar king, made a contribution of $10,000, but that this contribution, following a conference in Tom Taggart's office, was returned. He declared that Alton B. Parker, the Presidential candidate, had much to do with the policy of the committee toward contributions, and that Parker and committee members often conferred over the contributions which the Republican national committee was receiving.

Mr. Belmont, in discussing his own contributions, insisted he had no personal interest in the legislation, but his help was given as a loyal Democrat. He was unable to give the committee much information concerning contributors, but said Morton F. Plant, head of the Plant system, had at his solicitation made a contribution, the amount of which he recalled was $2,000.

"I attempted to make a canvass for funds but I did not find much encouragement in Wall street."

Chairman Clapp announced that William F. Sheehan, who was the real head of the 1904 Democratic campaign, will appear before the committee tomorrow and Postmaster-General Hitchcock, chairman of the National Democratic committee, will follow him on Thursday.

DEMOCRATS TALK PLANS FOR RAISING CAMPAIGN FUND

CHICAGO, July 16.—When Democratic National Chairman William F. McCombs announces the membership of the campaign committee of nine members of the national committee Thursday, the new board of strategy will find the first job that of filling the war chest. This was discussed today and directly by Roger C. Sullivan, retiring committeeman from Illinois, who told the committeemen here that it would take at least $1,000,000 to run the Wilson campaign.

Various ways for raising this sum were discussed by the committee, and then the whole problem was passed up to the campaign committee. The members of the campaign committee will not be named until Chairman McCombs has a conference with Governor Wilson at Sea Girt, N. J. As soon as the selections are made the members will be summoned to the "Little White House" for a conference with the candidate. The whole campaign will be discussed, including the question of financing the campaign.

Another matter that the subcommittee will consider is a question of campaign headquarters. Although the committee voted to establish headquarters in both Chicago and New York, efforts are being made to name Chicago as the real operating centre. Sullivan and other committeemen in conference with McCombs pointed out that in previous campaigns Chicago headquarters had been found convenient because of the ease with which various States might be reached.

DYER OF CINCINNATI NOT CANDIDATE FOR HEAD OF SCHOOLS

Superintendent of School Dyer of Cincinnati has not been offered the position of superintendent of Boston schools, according to a statement made by Chairman Ellis of the School Committee. Chairman Ellis declared that Mr. Dyer is not a candidate for the position.

Chairman Ellis said the dinner tendered Mr. Dyer has no connection with the office of school superintendent. He explained that Mr. Dyer happened to be in Boston, and the School Committee, hearing of it, asked him to attend the dinner.

Shoe Machinery Co. Willing to Split Up Into Three Parts

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Attorneys Choate and Herrick of Boston, representing the United Shoe Machinery Company, have placed before Attorney-General Wickersham a plan to settle the criminal suit pending against that company under the Sherman anti-trust law.

The company is ready, it has been ascertained, to agree to a dissolution similar to a suggestion made by the Harvester Trust, in which it was provided that the concern should split into two integral parts.

The machinery company, however, suggests that the Department of Justice agree to a plan providing for a partition into not more than three parts.

Mr. Wickersham stated today that nothing definite had been decided upon. He admitted that the officials had submitted a plan for dissolution in order to quash the criminal suits now pending.

BOY CRUSHED BY STREET CAR IS DEAD

Three-year-old Carl Gewecheger of Salem street, Malden, died at the Malden Hospital early today as a result of the injuries he received when run over last night by a Bay State street car. The baby was running after a chicken across the street, and it is claimed he dashed directly in front of the car. The motorman did not see him in time to avoid the accident. Motorman Colon Chisolm of No. 71 Lebanon street, Malden, and Conductor Thomas Paine of No. 290 Broadway, Malden, were allowed to go after the police investigated, but will be summoned into court.

"Fresno Dan" Russell, who is officially recognized by the family of the late Senator Daniel Russell of Melrose as the long missing son, Daniel Blake Russell, was under fire all day today at Asst Cambridge at the second trial of the famous contest by "Dakota Dan" Russell to prove that he is the long missing heir. The case is being heard by G. A. Peavey, who was appointed master to hear the evidence.

This is the first time that Fresno Dan has ever told his story to any court. The court room was crowded with friends of both claimants today while William H. Scharton plied "Fresno Dan" with questions.

Fresno Dan told of his recollections of his mother, of his early life in Melrose and of his wanderings in the West. He admitted that he has recently changed his handwriting. He told of his living under the assumed name of Johnson.

Wants Special Jury.

William R. Scharton, attorney for Dakota Dan, declared today that he would ask District Attorney Higgins to call a special session of the Grand Jury and allow his client to go before it and tell his whole story.

Should the District Attorney decline to accede to his request, Scharton says he will take the matter before Attorney-General Swift.

"Here is one of the most colossal frauds ever brought into a court," said Scharton. "One or the other of these two men, Fresno Dan or Dakota Dan, is a fraud. The liar and perjurer should be punished. My client is willing to go before the Grand Jury with no immunity and tell all he knows."

Dakota Dan Penniless.

"Is it true that Dakota Dan is penniless?" Scharton was asked.

"Yes. He was a well-to-do rancher. He has spent $30,000. He has no more money."

"How is the present action financed?"

NEW BEDFORD, July 16.—Two things happened in the strike of the 14,000 mill operatives today, both of which convinced the city authorities and business men of the gravity of the situation. In front of the Whitman mill on Bellevue avenue a thousand striking textile workers assembled, causing police to be rushed there. The other development was a movement among tradesmen all over the city for mutual benefit. This movement is the result of the serious tieup of business which came as a result of the strike. It is rumored credit may be denied the strikers.

At the Whitman mill the attitude assumed by the strikers was threatening. The crowd hooted workers on their way to the mills, but when the policemen arrived and showed their clubs, the men dispersed. The Whitman mill was one of the eight which granted the demand of the operatives that the notices regarding the grading system be withdrawn. It was said the mill had dropped alleged I. W. W. members.

Business men say the strike is a crushing blow to trade. Already it has affected a total weekly payroll of $100,000, which means that that amount is lost by the trades people of New Bedford. The first step of the merchants is the forming of a protective association among the grocers of the North End. Their plan is to adopt a cash system.

Hobin Accuses Langshaw.

President John Hobin of the Textile Council of New Bedford charged Walter Langshaw, mill agent, with having a fortune of "tainted money squeezed from the blood of the operatives." His statement follows:

Urge your friends and sympathizers of the union to refrain from acts of violence or any conduct that would tend to alienate the sympathy of help of New Bedford from the strikers' cause. Referring to action in mill corporations in posting notices announcing indefinite shutdown of the mills, I want to say that the lockout only anticipates action that the corporations would have been forced to take.

In regard to what Mill Agent Langshaw said about the honesty of mill officials in the present crisis, I would state that when the end comes as it will for myself and Mr. Langshaw in a few years, I expect to leave my wife and children an equal legacy with Mr. Langshaw in personal reputation, if not in material wealth.

I will not leave them as Mr. Langshaw will leave his family tainted money, procured from the blood of operatives whose friends he professes to be.

Try to Get More Out.

The I. W. W. leaders are making efforts today to induce other operatives at work in the mills to quit.

Tonight the weavers' union meets, and action is expected on the question of requiring the mills which did not adopt the WEST BRIDGEWATER, July 16.—John Norman, seventy-two, the father of six children, committed suicide here today by blowing his head off with dynamite. Norman went to a field near his home, placed the explosive in his mouth and exploded it. Norman had been ill and despondent, it was said. He was employed in hauling.

SCHWARTZ'S FATHER SAYS SON CONFESSED

NEW YORK, July 16.—Assistant District Attorney Nott announced today that two days after twelve-year-old Julia Conners was killed Nathan Schwartz, the suspect now being hunted, confessed the murder to his own father, Samuel Schwartz. The latter gave the prosecutor full details of the confession. "I told my boy" he declared, "that the only thing for him to do was to go away and kill himself. I think he did so." The elder Schwartz's statement followed a gathering of evidence by the office of the assistant prosecutor. It was made in the presence of the parents of the murdered girl.

AMERICANS IN PERIL OF MEXICAN REBELS

JUAREZ, Mex., July 16.—More than 500 American citizens, together with their wives and families, in towns along the Mexican Northwestern Railroad are threatened with isolation far from the Mexican border, with scant means of escaping depredations of Mexican rebels. It would cause no surprise if the Americans in all the towns along the line were warned to leave Mexico at once.

grading system to sign an agreement that the system will not be adopted.

The striking operatives declare that they propose to use peaceful means to obtain their ends.

At one mill, the Butler plant, a crowd of several hundred people gathered. There were cries against the operatives and women and men joined in the demonstration.

The picketing, according to I. W. W. leaders, was purely for moral effect and to win sympathy for the strike. The I. W. W., in its fight for a general strike as the best plan of campaign, is working alone, for the unions have declared for a strike only in the mills which posted the grading notices.

The I. W. W. is mailing large gains in numbers among the operatives on strike. A meeting tonight will take action on the question of a general strike.

The weavers and the Spinners Union will also hold important meetings tonight. The weavers will vote on the question of a general strike, while the spinners will act on the question of supporting the weavers, who have the sanction of the United Textile Workers.

Secretary William O. Devoll of the Manufacturers' Association has issued a statement outlining the stand of the mill men on the strike. The statement reads in part:

We wish to bring out just who is responsible for the strike of weavers in twelve New Bedford cotton plants.

The responsibility for the strike rests solely upon the shoulders of the leaders of the weavers' union. They absolutely ignored our invitation to them to draft some plan which would be more acceptable than the grading system to which they objected.

They ignored also the wishes of the operatives in other departments in the mills, who were opposed to a strike.

They even refused the request of the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration, representing the Commonwealth, to delay action for one week and give an opportunity to adjust the differences between operatives and mill men by conferences.

The weavers' leaders, in short, ignored all our overtures, and ignored overtures from the State, which might have led to a peaceful settlement. Under the circumstances, we feel that the blame rests solely upon them.

Twelve Mills Close.

The twelve mills where the operatives struck did not start a spindle or a loom today.

Three thousand are out of employment, besides the 10,000 weavers and 450 loom fixers who struck first.

Owing to the strike of weavers and loomfixers this mill will be closed indefinitely.

John Hobin, president of the Textile Council, when he heard of the notices being posted, said:

"The mills were shut down as a matter of fact when the weavers and loomfixers went out. It was only a matter of a couple of days at the most before the mills where the strike took place would have to shut down even if the Spinners' and Carders' Unions did not vote to come out."

"Good enough," was the comment of Francis H. Duffy, Jr., secretary of the Weavers' Union.

"They had to shut down," said Richard Parkinson, secretary of the Industrial Workers of the World.

A meeting of all the North End grocery store proprietors has been called for tonight, when it will be decided whether the proprietors will agree to run a cash system for all goods purchased during the strike.

This is understood to be the result of a conference between the wholesale dealers and the retailers. Many of the retail grocers have in times of strike been forced to close their stores at a great loss, and this loss is never wholly made up.

Textile Workers Back Strike.

The emergency committee of the United Textile Workers of the World met in this city and the strike situation was thoroughly gone into and discussed. The strike of the loom fixers at the Dartmouth mill was sanctioned and it was voted to grant permission for the carders and the spinners' unions to take action for a strike.

Following an enthusiastic meeting of the I. W. W. on an open lot at the corner of Second and Cove streets, at which William Yates, national secretary, and organizers Lee and Lopez spoke, a meeting of the strikers was held at headquarters on Deane street. It was arranged to have pickets at the mill gates and to keep them on duty until the present strike is over.

The weavers' strike, like the Lawrence strike, had its real origin in a grievance which the Legislature attempted to remedy, with poor results.

The fact that New Bedford is thoroughly organized by trades, as Lawrence was not, promises to make for a shortening of the strike.

A majority of the workers in New Bedford are English. Next in numbers come the French-Canadians, then the Portuguese, and there are some Polish. There are about 30,000 textile workers in the city.

SHEARN ATTACKS JEROME IN LAST APPEAL FOR THAW

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 16.—The climax of Harry K. Thaw's fight for freedom was reached today when Clarence J. Shearn, counsel for the slayer of Stanford White, made his final plea in the lunacy corpus case before Justice Keogh. Thaw listened intently while his lawyer held him up as a victim of William T. Jerome and the alienists who have kept him in Matteawan. He was the centre of a family group, including his gray-haired mother, his sister Alice, his brother Josiah and Mr. and Mrs. George Carnegie. Mr. Shearn assailed the efforts of Jerome to keep Thaw in the asylum, declaring he had presented testimony "much of it raked from the gutters, nearly ten years old, and which was only introduced to show that Thaw ought to have paranoia then, and it being incurable, he must have it now." Dr. Allan MacLane Hamilton was arraigned as a "faithless alienist who had taken Mrs. Thaw's money and then betrayed her."

AMERICAN ACTOR TO MARRY A BARONESS

LONDON, July 16.—The usual order of international matrimonial affairs is reversed in the case of Jack Henderson, an American actor, who has been highly successful in his part in the cast of "The Pink Lady." He has become engaged to Baroness Germaine Boncard. The Baroness, who drops her title among intimate friends, who call her "Sonia," married an Englishman, whom she divorced. Her title is an appanage of the family estate derived from her father, of a good old Breton family, who owns an estate named Trinon.

Another dispatch from Paris says Mr. Gatti-Casazza has selected Miss Geraldine Farrar for the title role of Madame Sans-Gene, and that Caruso will be Lefebvre, and Amato will be Napoleon.

DEMOCRATS SEE GOV. MARSHALL

INDIANAPOLIS, July 16.—Eighteen members of the Democratic National Committee after breakfast today at Taggart's Denison Hotel and an informal reception to local Democrats in the parlors of the same hostelry, called on Governor Marshall in the executive offices of the State House.

The committee members are returning home after the Chicago meeting and came to Indianapolis to pay respects to Governor Marshall as the Democratic vice-presidential candidate.

The members of the committee were introduced to Gov. Marshall by Thomas Taggart, national committeeman for Indiana, when they called at 10 a. m. The committee was escorted to the State house, led by the Indiana military band, which accompanied the Marshall boomers to Baltimore. All the Democratic State officials were present at the reception.

Following the reception the committee was taken in automobiles on a sight-seeing tour of the city and returned to the Denison hotel for lunch. After lunch they expected to go directly to the Union Station to get train for home, which many have not seen in two months. A few members of the committee have accepted invitations from Taggart to spend a few days at French Lick Springs before they go home.

Chairman McCombs was prevented from coming to Indianapolis with the committee because of several important engagements at Chicago. He expects to stop in Indianapolis on his way back to New Jersey to pay his respects to Governor Marshall, or to make a special trip here to confer with him.

FINAL HEARING N "L" STRIKE

The "L" strike hearings before the State Board of Arbitration closed today at the State House. Although the board requested the appearance of two witnesses from the L. only one, John Harrington, superintendent of division 7 of the Elevated system, appeared. Attorney Henry F. Hurlburt announced that John Learned, superintendent of inspectors, whom the board desired to examine, would not appear.

So large was the crowd of spectators that the board had to adjourn to room 421 in the State House. This was a much larger room than the one used by the board until today. The lawyer said his argument would take up an hour. He is followed by Attorney James H. Vahey for the strikers.

In response to questions from Chairman Howland Superintendent Harrington said that 241 of his men had gone on strike, and that 38 had since returned to work. He said that within thirty days prior to the strike sixteen men had been discharged on his division. He said the reason for the dismissals was that the men were not amenable to discipline. He admitted that many of them had good records and had won gold premiums for good service and conduct.

The board will probably make its report on the hearing next Friday.

Governor Foss and Mayor Fitzgerald may take up the question of a settlement of the strike, following the report of the board.

At a special meeting, the Boston Allied Printing Trades Council indorsed the position taken by the Central Labor Union with regard to the strike.

Tonight there will be a special meeting in the Ward 23 ward room, to protest against the attitude of the Elevated Company in refusing to arbitrate the strike.

GETS HELP AFTER HOPE HAS GONE

C. E. Loeffler, Victim of Nervous Debility Is Well Again

The following statement was made recently by C. E. Loeffler of 200 Columbus avenue, concerning the remarkable new tonic, Tona Vita:

"I didn't expect this medicine to help me, because I have been disappointed so often I had lost faith in everything.

"I have been sick for some time, not sick enough to go to bed, but just felt miserable all the time. I had headaches and my stomach was always out of order. I had no strength and was dreadfully nervous. I was always drinking something terrible was about to happen, and tossed about at night instead of sleeping. I did not feel refreshed in the morning but was tired before I began the day.

"I kept reading about this Tona Vita, but thought it was like all the rest and would not get it. One day I read of a man who said it had done great things for him, and he described his case exactly like mine. I finally decided to try it, and began to improve from the first dose. I think this is the best medicine in the world and gladly recommend it to any one afflicted as I was."

Many statements similar to the above are being received at various Boston drug stores. These statements are made by people who have been afflicted with the modern complaint, nervous debility. Half of the people who work at high pressure six days out of the week and who are too nervy-lunching avenue, concerning the remarkable new tonic, Tona Vita:

Such people have uncertain appetites, poor digestion, uneasy sleep, little ambition and become easily exhausted. They suffer with timidity, have no initiative, are droopy and listless and have not enough good rich blood in their veins to make them capable or well-rounded. The nerves are impoverished to such an extent that they imagine themselves afflicted with various diseases at different times. Their real trouble is debility, produced by the strain of the life they are forced to lead. There is not much of this ailment among country people, as their life is freer and permits them to observe a more rational mode of living.

Tona Vita will positively remove this condition in a comparatively short time. It is on sale at all leading drug stores in Boston.

MAYOR TO AID IN ICE 'FAMINE'

Mayor Fitzgerald today referred to Corporation Counsel Corbett the petition of Roslindale and West Roxbury residents to be relieved from the ice famine from which they say the district is suffering.

The petitioners claim that the ice companies are acting in violation of the law recently enacted, which prohibits discrimination in the sale of commodities.

With the petition was a request from the Mayor that the head of the city's law department find out if there was not some method by which the company which supplies the district with ice could be compelled to give the citizens a satisfactory supply.

Although fifty or more residents of the districts signed the petition, which was drawn up and circulated hastily, Mark J. O'Hare and others, who are behind the movement for more ice, claim that hundreds of West Roxbury residents have been inconvenienced and in many cases suffering has followed the failure of the Hub Ice Company to give a proper supply.

The petitioners claim that it is sometimes two and three days between the calls of the ice man. They charge that under an agreement which the ice companies have made, the Hub Company is given the exclusive right to serve the citizens of their district and that the failure to meet the demand should be sufficient cause for breaking this agreement.

Mayor Fitzgerald said that if Corporation Counsel Corbett could not find some way to compel the company to give better service he would endeavor to exert moral suasion to awaken the company to its responsibilities.

"The companies have a very important service to administer, particularly in the hot weather," said the Mayor. "They are charged with a grave responsibility, inasmuch as the health of the city is menaced by an improper supply. I will strive to the best of my ability to see that conditions are remedied in West Roxbury."

One Suitor in Cell, Miss Crocker Weds Whitman's Bride Fears for Her Life

Alarmed by Letters, California Heiress Has Detectives Guard Estate.

M. D. WHITMAN OF BROOKLINE AND MISS CROCKER

SAN FRANCISCO, July 16.—There is a note of pathos in the wedding bells ringing today for the moring picture marriage of Malcolm Douglas Whitman of Brookline, Mass., to Miss Jennie Adeline Crocker, the $10,000,000 California heiress. While the guests are attending the ceremony in the St. Matthew's Episcopal Church at San Mateo, which makes the young woman the bride of the Brookline tennis star, a former employe on the Crocker estate is in a prison cell because he boasted of his infatuation for the heiress.

The arrest of the employe, who was once Miss Crocker's gardener, is the only untoward event in the story of the second of the two weddings which has taken members of the wealthy William Whitman family of Brookline on a trip to the Pacific coast.

Detectives are on guard at all the gates which mark entrances to the grounds. Even tradesmen are not permitted to enter but leave their wares at the gates to be carried half a mile to the mansion by trusted employes. The young heiress is accompanied wherever she goes by detectives, and they are on duty at the church.

Last Saturday Hendricks H. Whitman, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. William Whitman and brother of Malcolm Douglas Whitman, was married at Lake Forest, Chicago, to Miss Adelaide Chatfield-Taylor of Chicago. From that city the Brookline party went on to San Mateo, where the second marriage takes place today with the famous moving picture accompaniment. Miss Crocker has been told of the arrest of her former gardener. The gardener's name is Thomas Cor. He is a good-looking youth. He was arrested on Miss Crocker's Hillsborough estate seeking an interview with her. The police claim he appeared normal in every way except for his strange belief he had won the affections of the heiress.

Placed Under Arrest.

Asked what he was doing on the estate, Cor said he was waiting to see Miss Crocker. Superintendent of the estate Maier, knowing that the gardener had been trying to do this for months, notified Chief of Police Boland of San Mateo.

Boland arrived on the Crocker estate in an automobile and placed Cor under arrest on a charge of disturbing the peace. When the automobile was enroute to the San Mateo County Jail Gerald Conens, marshal of Hillsborough, took the prisoner.

Miss Crocker did not learn of the arrest of Cor until she returned to Hillsborough several hours later. She made no comment further than to express regret that it was found necessary to jail the deluded young man.

Cor's case puzzles the police. After putting him to a long examination they found he was rational on all things with the exception of his belief he had won the regard of Miss Crocker. The police learned he was regarded as an excellent gardener.

Cor was born in Hungary, and for a time worked as a miner in Alaska. Asked about his recent whereabouts, he said he had been living in Palo Alto. There, he explained, he learned that Miss Crocker and her fiance had been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Martin at their country home in Napa for the last week and that the heiress was to return to Hillsborough. Cor left Palo Alto determined to see her.

"I had made up my mind not to bother her any longer if she assured me that it was her intention to marry Mr. Whitman," he said. "I meant her no harm. She was always kind to me when I was in her employ, and I would sacrifice my life rather than cause her pain. Everybody about the estate knows that I would not harm a hair of her head."

Cor, who had been talking rationally, immediately became extravagant in his speech when he started to discuss Miss Crocker. The fact that she was worth millions and that he was only a poor gardener made no difference, he thought.

"I would be willing to marry her if she hadn't a cent," he said. "I have never considered her money."

Delusion Cost Him Job.

From the statement made by Cor the police learned that he was discharged by Superintendent Maier of the Crocker estate when he began to tell the servants how much he thought of Miss Crocker. Following his discharge he could not eat or sleep for weeks, he said.

On September 7 last Cor said he decided to see Miss Crocker. He went to Hillsborough and after waiting about the Crocker grounds saw the heiress walking down a path lined with flowers.

Cor said he raised his hat and wished Miss Crocker good morning and that she hurried away. Still determined to see her, Cor applied for work as a carpenter some weeks later when a pavilion was being built for a fete on the Crocker estate. He managed to see her several times, he said, but did not succeed in engaging her in conversation.

The police believe that Cor should be held for observation as to his sanity. Miss Crocker has shown no disposition to prosecute Cor in the past, regarding him as one of the many harmless cranks that flit through the affairs of persons of wealth.

Moving pictures are to be taken of the wedding ceremony at San Mateo today. It is said that more than $50,000 worth of wedding presents have been received from friends in the East and in Europe. Whitelaw Reid, United States Ambassador to Great Britain, has sent the bride a diamond-pearl tiara.

CITY EMPLOYE IS STRUCK BY A CAR

John A. Henry, forty-seven, of No. 264 Bine Hill avenue, an employe in the sanitary division of Boston, while at work on Atlantic avenue, near Rowe's Wharf, early today, was struck by an out-bound surface car. Henry sustained a fracture of the ribs and injuries to his left side. He was taken home in a taxicab.

QUEANS EXECUTED

SANTIAGO, Cuba, July 16.—A captain of Cuban volunteers, two lieutenants, two sergeants and a private were today shot after sentence by court-martial for chopping to death with machetes four rebel prisoners they had captured. General Ivonet of the insurgents is again reported to have been killed.

BEGIN A FRESH 'RAFFLES' HUNT

If you wake up to find a burglar in your bedroom. Just—Keep cool.
Don't say very much.
Her do a lot of thinking.
Don't appear to be frightened.
Don't scream, for it may cost your life.
Size the burglar up as you would a business proposition.
Win over the intruder by kindness.

"Burglar Do's and Don'ts" by Mrs. Mabel Newton, who remained calm when she discovered a robber in her home at Swampscott.

The Swampscott police today began a new search for the so-called "Gentleman Raffles" who entered two homes in Swampscott at night and stole more than $200 in cash and then vanished. Following a clew that the mysterious robber was located somewhere on the North Shore and was probably stopping at some fashionable hotel, the police visited a number of well known Summer hotels in the hope of finally running the burglar to earth.

It was the theory of the police that the well-mannered robber was carrying out a plan of entering homes in North Shore places and getting away before the police could be alarmed.

Swampscott Aroused.

Swampscott people were still greatly worked up today over the daring thefts from the houses of Mrs. Newton and of John H. Thompson. In talking of her experiences with the robber, Mrs. Newton today gave a few maxims as to how to act if one catches a burglar in the room.

Here is Mrs. Newton's advice.

When I first heard the noise of some one in my room, I thought it was my father prowling around, but when I saw a flashlight outside of my door in the hallway, I knew it was a burglar.

I then just cuddled up my baby closer to me and I made no effort to get up.

Then the burglar appeared into my room. He was a very tall fellow, fine looking although he had a napkin around his face.

Voice Very Musical.

His voice was very musical. He was clad in a dark blue suit with immaculate linen, and his whole manner was gentle and even soothing.

I just looked at him.

He told me to keep quiet in a commanding way as if he had military discipline.

I then shoved my hand under the bedclothes. It had on my diamond ring.

"I don't want you," he said. "I want your money."

I did not answer him. I thought I should watch him. He then opened the bureau drawer and took out $10 I had there.

I would be willing to meet him face to face today. I would have no fear of him. The only thing I have against him is taking my money as well as my father's money and his watch and chain.

Frederick L. Perkins, the father of Mrs. Newton, said: "I have nothing against the burglar, but I would give him $25 for the return of my watch." Mr. Perkins is a master plumber and lives with his daughter on Greenwood terrace.

GAY PROGRAM FOR CONCERT TONIGHT

A troop of Joys will be in on the concert by the Municipal Band in Everett square, Hyde Park, tonight, for the program is bright and joyous as can be. In addition to a waltz, "Jolly Fellows," there will be selections from "The Spring Maid," "The Red Mill," and "The Chocolate Soldier." Tomorrow night the band plays in North square in the North End. "Italian Nights" is one of the selections. Most of the other selections are from the operas.

Miss Edith Deacon Returns to Tennis Court at Newport

NEWPORT, July 16.—On the tennis courts where her fiance, George Lee Peabody of Boston succumbed to the first stages of his fatal illness, Miss Edith Deacon returned to society today, taking part in the subscription tennis tournament in handicap doubles at the Casino. It was her first appearance in society since the pathetic death of her fiance.

Miss Deacon met Miss Martha Bacon in the tourney today. All the courts were busy, as the entries of society women are numerous. A few days ago announcement was made of an effort made by Mrs. Charles H. Baldwin, grandmother of Miss Deacon, to recall the heart-broken girl to the joys of society life. It was stated that the grandmother had offered the girl a fortune of $100,000 as a wedding gift. Miss Deacon had become a recluse. Her only pastime was the study of sculpture in the studio of a well-known artist.

Miss Deacon will sail August 15 for Europe to join her mother on the continent.

RAISE FRAUD CRY AT RUSSELL WILL HEARING

of Thelma, Minn. This estate will be settled in September. Mrs. Russell is willing to spend every cent of it in the interest of her husband.

Scharton's motion before Judge Loring in the Supreme Court in Boston, asking that Master Pevey, before whom the hearing is being held in the East Cambridge Court, be removed, on the ground that he is prejudiced, was looked after today by his partner, Edward M. Shanley. Lawyer Nason, who represents the Russell estate, was also in the Boston court.

Shanley asked for the removal of Master Pevey on the ground that he had already expressed an opinion on the case and that he is too friendly with Ferdinand B. Almy, an executor of the Russell estate.

Fresno Dan on Stand.

Lawyer Nason argued that the effect of the motion was simply a scheme of Dakota Dan's to delay the hearing before Pevey, who had been appointed by Judge Braley, who was satisfied with him.

Judge Loring decided not to act on the case and put it over to Friday, a week.

Fresno Dan, who Dakota Dan says is a fraud, resumed the witness stand today when the hearing was opened in the East Cambridge court. Yesterday he told of his wanderings through the West.

The court house was crowded. In the audience were several Pinkerton detectives. Why they were there could not be found out, chief of Detectives Patrick J. Hurley of Cambridge was also in the audience. The feeling grew that there would be a sensational move in the great will controversy before the hearing closed.

Fresno Dan was asked when he resumed the stand whether he had talked to anybody last night after court. He said he had, but denied that he had talked to his counsel or Mr. Almy.

Drew $10 a Week.

Q.—Did Mrs. Almy chide you for mentioning her name yesterday? A.—I don't remember that she did.

Q.—Did she say anything to you at all?

A.—Yes, she told me that she introduced me to Mr. Fish.

Q.—How much money have you received from the estate since you came here? (He has been here about two years). A.—About $1,200.

Q.—In what shape have you been getting it? A.—About $30 a week.

Q.—Was that for services rendered? A.—No, for spending money.

Q.—Well, you can't buy autos or give nine parties on that can you? A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever try to get any more money? A.—Yes, I spoke to Mr. Almy about it and he said he thought that that was all they could give me then. I understood that I could have to wait until the case was closed to get more.

Q.—How much did they pay you down when you first came into the case? A.—Mr. Cartwright, a Fresno lawyer, paid me $50.

Fresno Dan admitted that he had once been arrested in Fresno for playing a chinese lottery. He said he was inclined to gamble in a small way now in a while. He explained that he had first read of the Russell case in a newspaper. He went to the police station in Fresno and was sent to see Lawyer Cartwright.

"That," said Fresno Dan, "was the first time I had heard of the death of my father."

Out of Touch with Home.

Q.—You did not keep in very close touch with the folks at home? A.—No. I hadn't done very well and I did not want them at home to know it.

Q.—Did you ever try to find out how much of the estate is left? A.—No. I never asked. I am not inclined to be curious.

Q.—Not even when there is $200,000 at stake? A.—I didn't care whether I got it or not? A.—Yes. I'd rather like to have it.

Fresno Dan said that he wrote a letter to his brother William before he came East, but got no answer.

Fresno Dan said he had come to Boston in 1910 and had registered at the Quincy House.

Q.—Under what name? A.—Daniel Blake Russell.

Q.—Why didn't you use one of those fictitious names of yours, like Anderson? A.—Things were different. I had to use my right name.

Q.—Are you sure of that? A.—I am just as sure as I am standing here.

Q.—When were you married? A.—I never knew I was married. I never had enough money to get married on. It takes more than $40 to get married on. I couldn't find anybody to marry me.

There Still Is Hope.

Q.—That's unfortunate; I suppose you've had lots of proposals since you came back here with prospects of a lot of money? A.—No, I haven't.

To this Scharton rejoined:

"There's hope for you yet."

Fresno Dan said that though he had been in San Francisco for ten years, he has never voted.

Q.—Can you recall where you stopped? A.—There are so many of 'em I've stopped, for the hotels at which I paid were destroyed with the exception of the principals.

Q.—How much did you weigh when you left home? A.—One hundred and thirty pounds.

Looking at Fresno Dan's closely cropped hair, Attorney Scharton asked:

Q.—You had more hair then, didn't you? A.—A little more.

Q.—How did you wear it, pompadour or part it on the side? A.—I parted it on both sides.

"You were quite original about the way you wore your hair, weren't you?" said the lawyer.

Under Many Names.

Fresno Dan said that the reason he used several names was because he found it convenient to do so. He said he did not make many friends on his travels. He said he remembered John Larrabee, the Melrose town clerk, and that he remembered also going to an election and voting against "Ben Butler."

Q.—Why did you take the name of Johnson? A.—Because it was a convenient name. My father was twice elected Senator and never defeated and was Selectman for years.

Q.—Can you describe your mother? A.—My mother was a medium-sized woman, about five feet, five inches. I do not know whether she had gray hair or not, or whether she had it wavy on her face. She wore gold-pointed spectacles.

Q.—Can you recall any office your father held? A.—I can remember his being a Senator in 1879.

Q.—Do you remember the man who ran against your father? A.—No, the only man I remember is Joseph Wilde, who was Representative at the time.

Miss Keith in Court.

William C. Russell was at the hearing today.

Miss Hattie Keith of Melrose, who is said to have been Daniel Blake Russell's childhood sweetheart, was at the hearing. When asked what she knew about Fresno Dan, who was on the stand, she replied:

"Oh, I don't know who he is."

Q.—How much did your mother weigh? A.—About 120 pounds.

Q.—What was the quality of her voice? A.—Soft.

Q.—Was it a soprano or contralto? A.—I do not know about this. It was a moderate tone.

Q.—What imperfections about your mother can you recall? A.—She was quite deaf.

Q.—How long had you been aware of this? A.—Ever since I was five years old.

Tells About Mother.

Q.—Did she speak loudly on account of being deaf? A.—No. She spoke in moderate tones.

Q.—What else do you remember about her? A.—I remember that she was troubled with neuralgia.

Q.—Who was her doctor? A.—Oh, she did not have any doctor for neuralgia.

Q.—Do you know what doctor she had for other ailments? A.—I remember Dr. Abbott.

Q.—Where is he now? A.—He's dead.

Q.—When did he die? A.—I guess he was ten years old.

Q.—What other doctor do you remember? A.—Dr. Smith.

Q.—Where was his home? A.—On Main street.

Q.—Where is he now? A.—He is dead.

Q.—Can you give us some live one? A.—No.

Q.—What persons of prominence in Melrose worshiped you when you returned to Melrose after your long absence? A.—Mildred Butterick, Mr. Hinckley, Edward French, George Mowrick, Mr. Babb and others.

Q.—Do you know a Mr. Lambert? A.—Yes, I knew him in the early seventies. He used to keep a dry goods store.

Q.—Did he recognize you when you returned to Melrose? A.—No.

Q.—Did Mr. Larrabee recognize you? A.—I don't know. I never talked to any one unless they talked to me. I didn't run after people to recognize me when I got back. Most of the witnesses talked with me at Mr. Collins's office.

Met Levi Gould.

Q.—Was Mr. Odlin responsible for bringing you from Fresno? A.—No. Mr. Cartwright was.

Q.—Has Mr. Odlin had charge of you? A.—Yes. He telegraphed to Mr. Cartwright to bring me here.

Q.—What other men of prominence recognized you? A.—There was Levi Gould.

Q.—Has John Higgins recognized you? (laughter) A.—No.

Q.—Haven't you met him yet? A.—No.

Q.—Have you talked with the registrar of voters in Melrose since you got back? A.—No.

Q.—You registered as a voter when you were twenty-one, didn't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—Who were the witnesses? A.—I don't remember.

Didn't Know Police.

Q.—Who was the chief of police in Melrose when you left in 1885? A.—There wasn't any chief of police.

Q.—Well, who was the marshal then? A.—Angel B. Pierce. He was the head of the police as I remember it.

Q.—Where is he now? A.—He is dead.

Q.—What policemen in Melrose do you remember as a boy? A.—I don't remember any policemen.

Q.—You don't remember any policemen? A.—No. Two are dead I know and I don't know the others.

Q.—Did you know a Patrolman McLaughlin? A.—Well, I understood he died a year ago, but I don't think he was a policeman when I was a boy.

Q.—So you don't remember any policemen? A.—No.

Q.—How is that? A.—Because I never had anything to do with them.

Q.—Didn't you have the natural fear that the boys do in the neighborhood? A.—No. I never misbehaved.

Q.—But didn't you shoot off firecrackers and rockets on the Fourth of July and dodge policemen? A.—No. They never came around where I lived.

Q.—Then, like all your other witnesses, the policemen who knew you are all dead? A.—I don't know about that.

Q.—Well, name some policeman you do know is living? A.—I can't recall any.

Old Friends All Dead.

Q.—So that about all your witnesses are dead, once whom you claim knew you as Daniel Blake Russell before 1885, with the exception of the immediate members of the family sitting at the counsel's table here? A.—I don't know about that.

Q.—Where did you work for your father? —It was on Broad street.

Q.—What number? A.—I can't remember.

Q.—Do you mean to say you can't remember the number of your father's store, where you worked as a young man? A.—I can't remember. I know it was somewhere near the postoffice. There is a new building there now.

WHAT A TONIC SHOULD DO

Increase the Strength and Give Vigor to the System.

Webster's dictionary defines a tonic as a medicine that increases the strength and gives vigor to the system. That tells why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are a real tonic. Thousands of men and women are ailing today, not sick in bed but without strength and ambition to do the day's work. No one organ seems to be at fault, yet the whole system is lacking in health. They cannot sleep or rest well, are always tired out or nervous. Many have headaches, backaches and stomach trouble. All such people need the strengthening help of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. The beneficial influence of this medicine reaches the whole system. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do more than relieve one or two of the symptoms, they remove the cause.

The experience of Mrs. James F. Meynell, of Sullivan, Me., with this blood-making medicine is given in her own words, as follows: "My reason for recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People to others is that they saved me from a long illness and probably from consumption a few years ago. When teaching a country school I became so completely run down that I could not attend to my duties. My appetite failed me and I became so weak that it was with great difficulty that I could walk upstairs. I had palpitation of the heart and was short of breath. I also lost in weight. The people with whom I boarded recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I gave the remedy a trial and soon felt my strength returning. In a very short time I was perfectly well. More recently I again took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had been suffering from rheumatism for several months. The disease settled in the joints all over my body. I could just get around the house by the aid of a chair. The pains were so sharp that I could hardly keep from screaming. I suffered all through the summer until early fall. As the doctor did not help me I again turned to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I gradually got better and took the pills until cured and have had no return of the rheumatism since.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Caplet Chats About Our Opera Next Winter

MME. EDVINA, TO SING HERE, AND ANDRE CAPLET

Promises Boston Will Like the Singing of Madame Edvina.

FREDERIC JOHNS.

PARIS, July 3.—One Andre Caplet is going to be the whole works at the Boston Opera this season. Of course, Director Russell will be in full charge, but it is Caplet who is going to run the musical machinery. The big Frenchman, whose strange mannerisms and ungainly motions when conducting, amused many who did not recognize the true musicianship beneath, is in Paris planning the new productions.

He is to make them all, except the single revival of "Don Juan," which is reserved for Weingartner. Not only will he run the French department, but the Italian as well, and he will handle what German works are done when Weingartner is not there.

The stern and beetle-browed Conti, who ruled the Italian roost, is gone, and young Morandoni, brilliant as he is, will take his orders from Caplet.

The one big Italian production of the season, Wolf Ferrari's "Jewels of the Madonna," will be made by Caplet. He even will conduct Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel," and if Weingartner doesn't watch out he will get "Tristan und Isolde."

M. Caplet is hard at work now at his home in the Rue de la Tour conching younger members of the company in their roles in the new productions.

Caplet has an apartment on the first floor, and as I knocked on his door the strains of Charpentier's "Louise" came oozing through the cracks.

In the music room Frank Waller, one of the assistant conductors, was smashing his way through the piano score, while Caplet stood behind a music stand with a long baton, gravely and earnestly pretending to lead a whole orchestra.

Caplet was studying "Louise," rehearsing his baton, as it were. Not until he had memorized every note of it would he dare to rehearse an orchestra.

The rehearsal was discontinued, and M. Caplet talked enthusiastically about the coming season.

"If you ask me what is the feature of the season," he said, "I should say the series of Sunday afternoon concerts, of which I shall have charge. These are going to be quite unlike anything that Boston has heard. They will be both entertaining and instructive. They will be primarily orchestral, but singers from the company will assist.

"The first concert will be entirely Russian music. It will commence with the tone poem, 'Thamar,' by Balakirew. Then will come fragments from Mussorgsky's opera, 'Boris Godounow.' Next will be Rimsky-Korsakow's Spanish caprice, Mussorgsky's Songs and Dances of the Dead,' and choruses and orchestral numbers from Boudine's 'Le Prince Igor.'

"We are going to begin the season with Offenbach's 'Tales of Hoffmann.' Freda Hempel, the famous German soprano, will sing the mechanical doll; Edvina, the new lyric soprano, will be Antonia; Melis will be the Venetian courtesan, and Clement will sing Hoffmann. Vanni Marcoux, the greatest acting baritone bass of the day, will sing the triple part created by Maurice Renaud in America.

"Edvina is one of the greatest singers of the day. She has been the one star Louise, and London has gone wild over her. She will be our Melisande in 'Pelleas et Melisande' this season, and I believe you find that she is very excellent in the part. Mme. Edvina will not return to Boston.

"I am busy studying 'Jewels of the Madonna,' which I shall also produce during the coming season.

"Then you admire Italian opera?"

"Of course. I love all good music. Verdi, Wagner, Gounod, they are all great composers, what matter their nationality."

M. Caplet discussed "The Mauradom of Saint Saens," which Debussy composed and which he conducted a year ago last Spring in Paris. It was a failure here, no doubt of that.

"We shall, however, give it in Boston in the coming season. Who knows, it may be even done dramatically," said Caplet.

"WASH YOUR FACE" AN INSULT, RULES CHICAGO JUDGE

CHICAGO, July 17.—What is an insult? According to Municipal Judge Belden: "Oh, you baby!" is good form, even when addressed to a man's wife. If the man rubbing it in so much and tries for pugilistic honors, he can be fined $5 and costs.

Judge Caverly also ruled that it is a compliment to address a young woman as "you great big beautiful doll," while at Hammond, Ind., they are still trying to decide whether to call a man a "bull moose" is to insult him.

Judge Belden has now defined an insult. If either a man or woman tells you to "go wash your face" you have sufficient provocation to fight, either with words or fist. You can use both if necessary.

Mrs. Mary E. Ford, No. 2344 Wentworth avenue, told John Buckley, No. 2342 Wentworth avenue, a translator, to "go wash your face and your disposition will be sweetened." Buckley objected to the advice so strenuously that Mrs. Ford had him arrested.

"I guess you were justified in resenting the advice," Judge Belden said. "You are discharged."

HURT BY FALL OFF ROOF.

Albert Parsons, a carpenter employed at the American Rubber Company, East Cambridge, is at the Cambridge Relief Hospital in a grave condition as the result of a fall from a two-story building today. Parsons sustained a broken arm and injuries to his hip.

Three Millionaire Angels for Oscar Hammerstein

By CHARLES HENRY MELTZER.

Special Cable to the American.

LONDON, July 16.—Oscar Hammerstein grew quite confidential today. He told me he has had offers lately from three American multi-millionaires, each of whom stood ready to provide him with a handsome New York opera house. Moreover, he said, these generous patrons would turn the house over to him, free of rent, if he would manage it.

"It is impossible for me to name these gentlemen," said Mr. Hammerstein, "but I may tell you that one is a copper magnate."

This doubtless means ex-Senator Clark of Montana, whose friends assure me that he frequently attended the performances at the Manhattan Opera House, and has taken a deep interest in the fast-growing agitation in favor of opera in English which was started two years ago by the AMERICAN.

"So far I have neither accepted nor declined these offers," continued Mr. Hammerstein. "My hands just now seem tied by my having to look after my London house, but it is quite possible that I shall find some way to reconcile my conflicting interests."

I have reason to believe, from other things that have been said, that the projected opera house, if built, will be partly, or largely, if not wholly, devoted to performances in English. I know that Mr. Clark has long wanted to do something big and useful to encourage native art, and has assuredly had opera in English in his mind of late.

Appeal for the 'Lone Woman' Workers Who Never Get Rest

Miss Florence O'Hara Proposes Rest House for the Toilers.

By SYBIL WARNE.

Pity the lone women.

There are hundreds of them in Boston earning their own living.

May of them are growing old.

They see the gray hairs appearing.

Their salaries have been small for years.

They have saved very little. What is to become of them?

Their parents, upon whom they have depended, have gone.

They are simply alone, facing a tragedy.

Miss Florence O'Hara, who has been a business woman for years and has watched the interests of the working women in offices and stores, thinks there is nothing so pathetic in life as the stories of these lone women. A Rest Home should be established for them along lines that are not merely charitable, Miss O'Hara thinks.

She believes there is no class of workers today more deserving of consideration. In her office she talked earnestly of plans for doing something to brighten their lives. She thinks those women are neglected, because there is misunderstanding about their needs and their trials. Here is what Miss O'Hara says:

Pity the lone woman, the woman who has been practically against odds all her life and then suddenly finds that she is growing old and is likely at any moment to be thrown out into the world. There are hundreds of such women in Boston. They have worked hard all their lives. They have lived on very little. All their long lives they have had to look many times at a dollar before spending it.

As to wages, they never have received much, say $8 to $10 a week. But how small it is, considering what a woman needs today to keep herself looking respectable!

They have worked faithfully. But just as soon as they get gray-headed they they begin to worry. For some one is going to pass adverse comment on them.

You know I've been thinking lately that something ought to be done for the average working woman. Many of them right here in this city cannot take a vacation even when it is offered them. They have never received much, and all that they get goes towards paying their running expenses, etc. they are obliged to live from hand to mouth.

Wouldn't it be a good enterprise to have a Rest House for these tired business women, who have been working in offices or stores? Just a place where they could be charged a little but no managed that these women could go when they needed a long rest to recover their shattered nerves.

It is the lone woman that would appreciate this. Often she has lost her parents and must work constantly to exist. If she could only get intervals of rest. While she has a vacation, it is something more than a vacation that she needs. It is rest for months.

Nobody seems to care for them at times. It is a cheerless sort of existence they are leading. They have tired so long to lodging houses and just meet their expenses. Instead of giving so much toward colleges, would it not be practical to have such rest houses, where such women could go and recuperate? Just places where they could pay a little and get the rest they absolutely need.

What have they to look forward to? They have lost relatives and face the world with this tragedy before them. They either have enough money saved to commit them to an old women's home or must go to the poorhouse. How many girls in this city who are alone, working hard to pay their expenses, dread the time their hair will be gray and their employers will hint that they are getting old and advise them to dye their hair.

SEVEN DOLLARS WILL BUY A GREAT BARGAIN

Three Hundred Men Will Have An Opportunity To Secure a Fine Summer Suit, a Rain Coat or a Top Coat Tomorrow Worth Twice $7. By Being Early.

WEDNESDAY—MEN'S DAY—HENRY SIEGEL CO.

BOSTON, Tuesday—Although man was first in creation, yet he is last to get his clothes nowadays. His better half has the first call, next are the children, then the butcher, the baker—and by this time his pocketbook is pretty flat. Therefore, Men's Day at Siegel's has become a welcome event to hundreds upon hundreds of men of modest means.

Ordinarily no firm can sell clothing or anything without profit and exist, but in an institution with a purchasing power of four great stores, in Boston, New York and Chicago, where there is a continuous coming in and going out of merchandise, assortments become broken rapidly, and accumulations must be disposed of summarily.

Tomorrow, low water mark is reached with the figure $7, because the clearing price intended for Men's Day, July 17, was very much higher. The 800 garments aggregate at regular retail prices $4,125, and would bring at wholesale more than $3,000. "But," argued our clothing chief, "every garment sold on Men's Day at 'Seven Dollars' will bring us $7. worth of the best advertising money can buy." And looking over the assortment, the advertising manager agreed with him.

Pardon this somewhat lengthly introduction, gentlemen! In the regular way of advertising, you would not "get" the importance of this event, and perhaps pass it over, to your detriment.

At 8:30 sharp there will be ready for your selection 71 Blue Serge Suits (fast color, pure worsted). The sizes in this group are 35 to 46, with emphasis on 40 and 42 breast measure. The price is $7. Remember Serge Suits of serviceable weight are scarce at popular prices.

Next in line you'll find 68 two-piece outing suits. The size range from 33 to 42; middle sizes 36, 37 and 38, well represented. Price $7. Ideal summer suits, you'll agree when you see them.

Your third choice is the pick of 98 mixture suits. There are grays and browns and tans and blue overplaids, in fact, some very nobby patterns. The fabrics are both worsted and cassimere textures. Sizes 33 to 42, with a strong line-up for young men. All the same price, $7.

Raincoats (cravenettes, slip-ons, rubberized), just 40 of 'em; all sizes, but only one or two of a kind. You couldn't have a better companion in your auto or at seashore and mountains, $7. A nightly small premium for big insurance of health and comfort.

Pg. 23, that's all—Topcoats; they are "topcoats." Rest of the family sold weeks ago. That's why they are tagged $7. At first glance you'll shake your head, "No, no, I need no topcoats" but, remember September and October are not far off; $7. Small investment.

But whether you need clothes right off or not it's an hour well spent to visit Henry Siegel Co.'s Men's Store, third floor, tomorrow, Wednesday—Men's Day. Take elevator Essex street side. You'll find plenty of company.

STAGE FAVORITE BROKER'S BRIDE

BRETTON WOODS, N. H., July 16. At last the secret is out. The beautiful bride, whose identity baffled the members of the society set in the summer colony, has let the cat out of the bag herself. In short the bride "leased up when folks began to get too inquisitive.

The mystery bride is none other than the former Miss Mabel Weeks, footlight favorite, who played at the Majestic in Boston in "Pinafore" and was in the front row of the chorus of "The Girl and the Kaiser" company when she married Aaron Claflin, a handsome and wealthy New York broker. Since her marriage, the bride has been termed the only show girl who ever got married without losing her press agent.

Tread Lightly in Roxbury! Dynamite Cache Big Mystery

It's a cinch that the pathways out near the Blind Babies' Home in Roxbury, on the Muddy River, are going to be deserted by strollers along lovers' lane, despite the moonlight nights. There's a reason for the scare, and here it is:

Somewhere in the vicinity of the said pathways are hidden eight sticks of dynamite, enough to blow up several buildings and give all Boston a fit of the tremblies. According to the police, the eight sticks are part of a quantity of dynamite stolen by three boys from Bolder's Ledge, off South Huntington avenue, two weeks ago.

Several facts given out by the police will be sufficient to send a cold chill down the backs of Roxbury people who may have met a small boy with something bulging from his sleeves and his back trousers pockets.

The police say the small boy is one of the three who stole the dynamite, and that for a whole day toted four sticks of the dynamite through Roxbury streets. To have strolled his way or cropped up might have meant instant death to himself and people about him.

The boys, according to the police, wanted to sell the dynamite, but being unable to find a buyer, hid it in the fields near Muddy River.

The three youngsters arrested were Joseph and Walter Kilroy, fifteen and twelve years old, respectively, living at No. 184 Fisher avenue, Roxbury, and Arthur Cahill, twelve, of St. Alphonsus street, Roxbury. The police held the Cahill boy as a witness. The older Kilroy boy was sentenced to the Suffolk School for Boys and the younger was released on probation. The cases were appealed.

The streets were kept quiet by the police for nearly a week. Today they continued their search for the dynamite.

TALES of the TURKISH TROPHIES

TALE 7 - THE GARDENER

"WHAT style of fish is cooking in the Royal Kitchen?" asked the Kink, as he noted smoke coming through the study window.

"It is not fish, sire," said the Royal Secretary. "It is the new gardener. He is smoking a pipe."

"Have I not commanded that only Turkish Trophies be smoked within the Palace Grounds?" roared the Kink.

"Run the lawn-mower over the gardener and turn the hose on him. He needs pruning."

"It's a pipe," said the secretary, gleefully.

GAMBLERS SUSPECTED OF KILLING ROSENTHAL

before the grand jury. He declared that he was sure the police would kill him for making the statements he had about their connection with gambling. I laughed and pooh-poohed his story, but he added, 'Better men than I have been killed when the police wanted them out of the way. They will get me and you will never know who did it.'"

Had Revealed Gambling System.

The assassination of Rosenthal followed revelations which he had made to District Attorney Whitman of a full scale of prices charged by the police for the operation of all kinds of gambling in New York. Rosenthal had further charged that Charles A. Becker, a police lieutenant, in charge of what is generally known as the "strong arm" squad, was a partner with Rosenthal in the conduct of his gambling house.

District Attorney Whitman had summoned ten policemen and two lawyers, the latter charged with being Becker's counsel, to appear before the grand jury today and testify concerning the charges.

According to witnesses, one of the men who was in the automobile from which Rosenthal was shot down were a police man's uniform. This is believed to have been a ruse to attach suspicion to the police.

The actual murderers are believed to have been gamblers disgruntled because revelations which Rosenthal made have stirred up trouble for other members of the gambling fraternity in New York city. Following Rosenthal's allegation, Police Commissioner Waldo had declared that gambling must be stamped out in this city.

The shooting occurred about 2 o'clock this morning after Rosenthal had been lured from the Metropole Hotel by a message that a man wanted to see him outside.

Lured from Hotel.

Rosenthal reached the hotel about midnight, where he had evidently had an appointment. He had some drinks with his companions and talked earnestly to them for over an hour. Upon being told that some one wanted to see him at the front door of the hotel Rosenthal followed the messenger. No sooner had he reached the pavement than a shot rang out, followed quickly by four others. Just as Rosenthal reached the sidewalk a low gray-bodied touring car, which had been standing on the opposite side of the street, crossed over.

The prompt finding of the automobile which was used for the murder was due to the fact that several persons read the number "41,315, N. Y.," on the plate as it stood in the full glare of the electric lights in front of the hotel. Investigation showed that the machine had been purchased last October from the Finance Motor Company by Louis Libby. The police, after finding Libby's name in the records as the owner, learned that the car was kept in a Washington square garage. This garage was the same that was used to house the taxicab which figured in the $25,000 bank messenger robbery several months ago.

Denies Part in Murder.

Libby was soon found. He admitted having the car out early in the evening, but denied having any part in the murder. Despite his protestations the police locked him up and declared that his identification as the chauffeur in the case had been made beyond doubt.

While the police were at work, District Attorney Whitman, who had hurried to the scene of the assassination within two hours of the shooting, was making a personal investigation at the Hotel Metropole. He questioned persons who had seen the automobile and the actual shooting. The story of the shooting was given to Mr. Whitman as follows:

The shooting took place in the twinkling of an eye. As Rosenthal reached the street a man approached him. As the gambler drew close the stranger suddenly flashed a revolver and fired. Rosenthal staggered toward the doorway. As he did so a gray automobile which had been crossing the street drew up. Three men jumped to the running board, fired a volley and then sank into their seats. Rosenthal sank to the pavement with the blood flowing from a number of wounds. The man who had fired the first shot sprang into the car and it dashed away. A number of pedestrians attracted by the shooting ran up.

Death Almost Instantaneous.

There were two bullets in one of Rosenthal's cheeks. One had torn away the bridge of his nose and one, evidently the first shot, had entered the middle of the forehead. Death had been almost instantaneous.

James Considine, brother of the owner of the Metropole, said:

"The shooting was so quick that it was impossible to see who did the work. I could not get the number of the car myself. I saw Rosenthal when he came out of the hotel.

"He started toward Broadway, then seemed to change his mind and started back. I don't know whether he saw the men in the car or not, but something seemed to tell me that Rosenthal was marked. I know that one of the men in the car was a policeman."

Police Lieutenant Fife of the Central office staff was dining in the Metropole with a party of friends when he heard the shots and ran out. Without waiting for details he jumped into a taxicab and started in pursuit of the big slate-colored racer. He gave chase for a mile across town before his slower machine dropped hopelessly behind.

Intense excitement followed the shooting. Reserves from the Forty-seventh street station were rushed to the hotel, and they fought back a large crowd that collected in the streets. A sheet had been thrown over the body and some one went to notify Mrs. Rosenthal. She collapsed when told that her husband had been murdered, and then raiding, came to the scene where the police fought their way through a crowd to let her get to the body of her husband.

She threw herself on the body, and it was some time before she could be calmed sufficiently to be led away.

Wife Accuses Police.

When Mrs. Rosenthal recovered sufficiently to talk she said that her husband had left home about 8 o'clock last night and that she understood he had an appointment with Lieutenant Becker. She had a presentiment harm would befall her husband and tried to persuade him not to keep the appointment. She blamed the police for the murder.

MRS. SMITH TO AID GOVERNOR

The announcement by Governor Foss that he will again be a candidate for reelection sent the Democratic band wagon on with a flying start.

The only jarring note in Democratic harmony is District Attorney Pelletier's declaration that he will be a candidate for the nomination just the same. Governor Foss in his announcement that he would run, said:

"Considering the fact that two of the avowed candidates for Governor are bachelors, while there are 80,000 unmarried women in the State, I think they'd better take another year and qualify for the office."

"You mean get married?" some one asked.

"Yes. The Governor ought to be a married man."

Mr. Pelletier's reply was that the people could best decide about that.

State House wise men, however, see in Governor Foss' words a bid for Mrs. Charlotte's Smith's support. The Bachelor Tax Hill sponsor is expected to enter the lists against the District Attorney.

As for other Democratic candidates—David I. Walsh will accept second place again. Mayor Fitzgerald declared that all should turn in and give the Governor harmonious support.

ILLINOIS PLAN TO PUT T. R. ON TICKET WITH TAFT

CHICAGO, July 16.—A plan to put the name of Theodore Roosevelt on the regular Republican ticket in Illinois along with that of William H. Taft in defiance of the decision of the Republican National Convention has been suggested by leaders of the various warring factions of the party here. The plan is a compromise offer to prevent putting a third party State ticket in the field.

According to the plan the names of Taft and Roosevelt would be printed under the Republican emblem. A square would be placed in front of each and the voters asked to indicate their choice by a cross.

The electors, according to the scheme, would be pledged to vote for the candidate receiving the highest vote in this preference election.

Another plan suggested as a peace offering is to submit a short ballot with the other tickets at the election giving the voters the right to express their Presidential choice on a separate ticket, the Presidential electors being bound to vote according to the result of this ballot. Both plans could legally be carried out, according to the Illinois election laws.

HILLES OPENS FIGHT FOR TAFT

NEW YORK, July 16.—Chairman Hilles opens President Taft's campaign here today. Headquarters have been prepared, and the President's secretary will take personal charge. He will be assisted by Secretary James B. Reynolds.

One of the first guns fired will be the issuance of a statement prepared in Washington by President Taft, Chairman Hilles of the Republican National Committee, Senator Sanders, Senator Crane and former Senator Dick, to refute the charge that any of the Taft delegates to the Chicago Convention were illegally seated. It is understood that the statement is to be given publicity either by the National Committee or by Republican members of the House and Senate. It is a very exhaustive review of every contest.

The President probably will go to Beverly on the night he is notified of his nomination, August 1, and if Congress has adjourned, will stay there until late in the Fall. If Congress decides to continue sitting after August 1, the President will return to Washington after a short stay and not go North again until Congress is ready to quit. He will not go to Beverly before the notification.

FIREBUG AGAIN IN NORTH END

The second North End incendiary fire in twenty-four hours started in the basement of the four-story brick dwelling house at No. 16 Cross street, early today. The occupants were sent scurrying to the street.

The circumstances surrounding today's fire are similar to those which marked the other incendiary fires which have occurred in the North End recently. The fire was started in the basement in a pile of rubbish and was set shortly after 6 o'clock. This is the time when the firebug has invariably paid his visits.

Quick work on the part of the firemen at today's blaze prevented heavy damage. The damage was $200.

THIRD ATTEMPT TO BURN HOME

The third incendiary fire in nine days in the Waverley Block, No. 715 Main street, Waltham, drove six people to the street in their night clothes early today. The building is a three-story wooden dwelling. The fire was discovered under the stairway by Mary Cincotta, eight-year-old daughter of Frank Cincotta. With her father and her two brothers, Joseph and Frank, she raced down the stairs to the street. Two roomers, Felix Sebastian and Antonio Fauta, who were unable to make their way down stairs, climbed to the roof, crossing to another building by the fire escape. The damage was $200.

MASSACHUSETTS IN PORT, AFTER GOING TO AID OF CRAFT

The Metropolitan New York-Boston liner Massachusetts reached port today safely, with 600 passengers aboard, having stood by a wrecked schooner off Cape Cod to offer assistance. The steamer was sighted, and then there rumors that she was in distress.

The Massachusetts had been sheered off Nauset, a little town on the Cape standing by the schooner, whose rigging was damaged and its flag floating aimon down. When the steamer decked Captain H. H. Crowell stated that he sighted the schooner with her mainboom broken and all her main rigging carried away. The captain of the schooner wanted a tug. When Captain Crowell discovered that the schooner was in no danger the Massachusetts continued to Boston.

John Chaloner in Hectic Words Raps Relatives

By Telegraph to the Editor of the American.

RICHMOND, Va., July 16.—Your wire asking "reason for deeding away your property—do you expect your relatives will try to upset your plans?"—received. Of course, I expect my relatives will try to upset my plans. They have been doing their damnedest to try to upset my plans, and have succeeded admirably for the past fifteen years.

JOHN A. CHALONER.

It was announced on Sunday that John Armstrong Chaloner had decided his property, valued at $1,500,000, to the Virginia Trust Company, in trust, to make sure that no part of it shall ever fall within the hands of his relatives. He is at odds with practically all of them. The purpose of the AMERICAN'S dispatch was to verify this report.

SYMPATHY FOR SANGER'S WIDOW

The widow of former Senator George P. Sanger, who committed suicide by shooting at the Hotel Ludlow, received many letters and telegrams of sympathy today.

The motive for the suicide is a mystery. The friends of Mr. Sanger, who was rated as wealthy and who had an extensive law practice at No. 53 State street, ascribe the suicide to despondency over nervous complications and ill health during the past few years.

Mrs. Sanger, who came to Boston when notified of her husband's act, explained that her husband seemed no worse than usual when left by his wife some hours at Manchester. He had dropped no word during his conversation with her or his friends recently which would seem to indicate that he contemplated taking his life.

Hetty Green Baptized Into Episcopal Faith; Ceremony Was Secret

NEW YORK, July 16—Hetty Green, richest woman in the world, now seventy-eight years old, was baptized last Saturday afternoon in the Episcopal faith, it was learned today.

The news came as a surprise. On her last birthday, Mrs. Green said she belonged to the sect of Quakers. It is now stated that she will proceed to confirmation as an Episcopalian.

The baptism ceremony was performed in Jersey City by the Rev. Augustus Kinsendorf, rector of Holy Cross Episcopal Church, in the presence of Colonel Edward Howland Robinson Green, on whose shoulders have fallen much of his mother's great business responsibilities.

MUNICH, Bavaria, July 16.—Richard Trunk, director of a local singing society here, has been selected director of the New York Arion Society.

EXPECT GIRL TO BARE FUNK PLOT

CHICAGO, July 16.—It is expected that Miss Eulalia M. Kearney, a masseuse, who is said to have first revealed the alleged conspiracy to ruin the reputation of Clarence S. Funk, general manager of the International Harvester Company, as an aftermath to the Lorimer case, will go before the Grand Jury today, and give the details of her story.

She was subjected to a second examination by State's Attorney Wayman. Mrs. Josephine Henning, wife of the man who filed the suit to recover $25,000 from Mr. Funk for alleged alienation of his wife's affections, also was questioned by the prosecutor.

It is reported that Miss Kearney probably will be the last witness to go before the Grand Jury in the present investigation, as no trace has been found of John C. Henning, for whom a warrant charging perjury was issued several weeks ago. Search for him continues.

Blow Up Lot for Loot, but Get Only Cans and Bottles

Tin cans and bottles were all the Hartford police found after plowing up a vacant lot on Woodland street, Hartford, where William Castlebaven, colored, a convict serving a sentence of ten years in Charlestown Prison, declared he had buried the $7,500 worth of jewels which were taken from the residence of Dr. E. C. Smith of Hartford last November.

That Castlebaven had nothing to do with the Smith robbery and was actuated simply by wrongful motives, is the theory of the Hartford detectives, who point out that Mary Burton, the woman with whom Castlebaven was living while in Hartford, and whom he accused of complicity, has cleared herself of all suspicion. Castlebaven was caught after a Springfield robbery by means of pawn tickets, but he harbors the idea that the Burton woman betrayed him false because he did not give the best pieces of loot on another job to her.

WILLIAM WINTER AT 76 WORKS ALL DAY

NEW YORK, July 16.—William Winter, dean of American dramatic critics and recognized as the greatest living historian of the American stage, reached his seventy-sixth birthday yesterday. Instead of taking a holiday, the veteran journalist spent the greater part of the day hard at work upon the manuscript of his new book, in his vine-covered home at No. 20 Third avenue, New Brighton, Staten Island.

RED SOX WILL TACKLE TIGERS IN THE FINAL

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

PILGRIMS HAVE 9 DAY OF REST TO THINK IT OVER

Even the Tiger Will Turn

By Hal Coffman

RILEY'S COLUMN

WHEN Governor Plaisted of Maine, special editor of the Sunday AMERICAN, predicted in the Sporting Section of the AMERICAN that the Red Sox, "with the aid of Bill Carrigan of Maine," would win the American League pennant, he made a clever guess or showed better knowledge o baseball than most Governors are supposed to possess. For Bill Carrigan of Maine is a greater factor in the success of the Red Sox than appears on the surface.

* * *

WHEN the Red Sox were in the midst of the slump last year that finally led to the sale of a very large interest in the team, and when it was generally supposed that Patsy Donovan was to retire as manager, many of the Red Sox players—who were substantially the same team that heads the league today—proposed to petition John L. Taylor, then president and entire owner, with his father, General Charles H. Taylor, to make Bill Carrigan manager of the team. The players were told that it would be fruitless, that it was unprecedented to appoint a manager at the request of the men and that such an act would probably injure Carrigan's chances—if he had any. So they abandoned the idea. But they expressed confidence that Carrigan could lead the team to a pennant.

* * *

IT was Carrigan's "baseball brains" and ability as a field leader—together with his fighting capacity, that led his fellow players to suggest him as manager.

* * *

CARRIGAN and his side partner, Heinie Wagner, were the two veterans of the team and they—with Jake Stahl now back in the game—have done most of the field management. They both know everything that is to be known about baseball and big league players, and both are quick witted on the field and daring and hard fighting players. Wagner and Carrigan are "wells" on the bases. They are not nimble-footed stars—although Wagner approaches close to that outline—but they take quicker advantage of opportunities to advance themselves and other runners than any other members of the team, and they have pulled many a game out of the fire both by intelligence on the bases and on the field.

* * *

BESIDES the Carrigan has practically built up the superb pitching corps that has placed the Red Sox at the head of the list. He has worked every batter in the league and knows their weaknesses better than any other catcher does. He has coached the pitchers, on and off the field, until they are now the best pitching staff—taken together—in the American League. Carrigan, more than any other man, has pulled them through the tough places and shown them how to steer their way out of the holes that every pitcher falls into at times.

* * *

A MAN like that is sometimes dangerous on a team because baseball players who have managerial capacity are usually discontented unless they have the managerial title as well. That is not true in Carrigan's case. Bill is a loyal member of Jake Stahl's team, as he was of Patsy Donovan's and has never shown a disposition to butt into the managerial row or to fail to play his place with all his soul. As a recognition of his services, Carrigan receives as high a salary as any catcher in the league—if not higher.

* * *

THAT it is the pitching, more than any other factor, that has placed the Red Sox in first place and is keeping them there, is demonstrated more convincingly every day. Figures of individual and team work, together with the comment of experts, prove this.

* * *

THE Red Sox have not won their games by large scores. It appears that, except in a few cases, they have not piled up such big totals day after day as they did last year. Only two of the men—Speaker and Gardner—are in the .300 class of batters this year, while at this time in 1911 the Red Sox had a bunch of .300 batters. The other teams, generally, have more .300 batters this year than the Red Sox.

* * *

SPEAKER is the only Red Sox player who figures in the first dozen batsmen. He, Hooper and Gardner are among the twelve leading run-getters, but it is largely by virtue of uniform batting all along the line—and particularly when runs are needed—that the Red Sox have scored enough to win. Speaker, of course, shares the league batting honors with Cobb and Jackson.

* * *

IT is the defensive work that has improved this year, rather more than the offensive, and the chief improvement has been in the pitching department. Unfortunately good work by the box men has done more than anything else. As Jake Stahl says, Joe Wood pitched the Red Sox into the lead by taking two turns a week and winning nearly always before the team was whipped into shape. But Charley Hall, Ray Collins, Hugh Bedient and "Buck" O'Brien, with Wood, have kept it there and Hall's general percentage of games won is slightly better than Wood's just now. When one one-two of them weakens the others appear to strengthen and Stahl always has them "going good."

* * *

WITH five pitchers like these, backed by improved—frequently brilliant—team work on the defense, the Red Sox have been able to keep their opponents' scores just a little under their own. The less runs the Red Sox score, the harder the pitchers work, and therefore the team wins more than two out of every three games played.

* * *

BILL CARRIGAN'S work with these pitchers, therefore, has been one of the other factors in placing the team where it is. So Governor Plaisted had the right premises when he said that the Red Sox, "with the aid of Bill Carrigan of Maine," are likely to win the American League pennant.

EASTERN TENNIS DOUBLES STARTED

The matches in the third and fourth round of Longwood singles and the first round of the Eastern Doubles championship started early this morning at Longwood. The best matches, however, were slated for the afternoon, when Beals Wright and Karl Behr meet R. N. Dana and H. A. Mackinney. This contest is scheduled for 2 o'clock and a half an hour later J. C. Nelson meets M. E. M. Longville. J. W. Niles plays F. H. Harris, and A. S. Bobbey meets C. S. Cutting in the singles. The week day's contests at Longwood proved the field to be as anticipated, small, but of high calibre. Karl Behr found no easy match in R. C. Seaver, who made him go the full quota of three sets to win. H. L. Williams, who was the drawing player yesterday, has reached the fourth round, in which he will probably meet Karl Behr. These two players were both on the Titanic. Their meeting on the courts will become a great battle.

BALDWIN MEETS TOMMY O'KEEFE

By JACK CONWAY.

MATTY BALDWIN of Charlestown and Tommy O'Keefe of Philadelphia should put up a rugged battle when they clash at the Pilgrim A. A. tonight. The men are scheduled to go twelve rounds to a decision. This is the last bout that will be held at the Arena until September 9 and a good-sized crowd of "fans" are expected to turn out to take in the festivities.

The Bunker Hill pride rules a 5 to 3 favorite. Matty has been performing like a regular champion during the past year, and if he fights as well tonight as he did against Eddie Murphy last month, he when he met Eddie Murphy he should be returned the winner.

The local lightweight has never been considered a good boxer, but if you watch his work closely you will notice that Matty knows more about the art of self-defence than he is given credit of knowing. He is rather slow on his feet and does not shape up like a McFarland, but, nevertheless, he cerdes many well meant blows in his own awkward way.

O'Keefe arrived in town yesterday with his manager, Herman Taylor of Philadelphia. Tommy is in good condition and he is confident that he will be returned the victor.

O'Keefe is a sterling boxer. He is blessed with a fine pair of feet. O'Keefe's speed enables him to land stinging blows and get away without being hit. Tommy possesses a corking good left jab and is sure to cause Baldwin a great deal of trouble. On paper Baldwin should win or get a draw at the least.

THE preliminary card is an attractive one. Jimmy Moriarty of Lowell and Peck LaFavor clash in a six-round contest. Moriarty is a sturdy old war horse and has not been knocked off his feet for over a year. LaFavor packs a terrific wallop in either hand and when he lands his opponent usually goes to the canvas. It waits to be seen whether or not he will be able to hit Moriarty hard enough to send him to the mat even for a second. Although a good hitter, LaFavor is unable to assimilate a great deal of punishment.

Frankie Mack will meet Kid Wilhelm. Mack has appeared in the Pilgrim Club a number of times and has usually done well. The other preliminary will be between Jack Muncie and Chicken Roskin.

BILLY PAPKE, the alleged "Illinois Thunderbolt," who arrived in New York the other day, is real popular in France. The Federation Francaise des Societes des Boxe, one of the societies which controls boxing in France, recently issued a statement making the "real" boxing champions. The Frenchmen gave the middleweight title to Papke. In discussing the middleweight division the statement read:

Sports Feature Big Sacred Heart Picnic

The Sacred Heart parish of East Boston reunion and picnic which will be held at the Riverside Recreation Grounds in Auburndale next Saturday, will furnish many athletic features.

Two ball games between old rivals will bring out the baseball fans, for two hot games are promised. The Emersons, smarting over their defeat of July 4 at Wood Island, are going to reverse things Saturday, according to their friends, and the Cunninhys, who whipped the Belmonts in a 16-inning game the same day, are backing themselves to beat their old opponents.

All East Boston is worked to a fever pitch as these two rival matches. In addition a tug-of-war has been arranged between the civil courts of the M. C. O. F., Lee Court and Maverick Court.

The track and field events have been sanctioned by the New England Amateur Association. Some of the best known athletes in New England have entered.

Comiskey Cannot Get Release of Chase

CHICAGO, July 16.—President Charles Comiskey of the White Sox returned to Chicago from New York last night and set at rest rumors that Hal Chase of the Highlanders might be sold to his club.

"We had no chance to get Chase," said Comiskey, "without weakening our club more than Chase would have strengthened it. No trade would be agreed to by New York that would not leave a hole in the home team that it would be immediately necessary to fill with a good man."

Comiskey did not make known the names of players mentioned in the attempted trade.

JOE WOOD AND CADY BATTERY AIDS POLICE IN SHUTOUT

Twitler Joe Wood and Backstop "Hollie" Cady are "some battery," according to the fans who have been taking in the games at Fenway Park, but it is as pinch hitters in a new way that the pair have gotten in line for perhaps a Carnegie medal or two. Their friends learned today that modest Joe and silent "Hollie" came to bat at the proper time to save Patrolman Carry and Reserve Officer Garrity of the Back Bay Station from a beating by two men who were later arrested.

Carry had seen the men driving in the Fenway. He thought they acted suspiciously. He signalled to Garrity to help him. Garrity was attacked by one of the men, and then Wood and Cady butted in and saved the day. By the time Carry had run up, the two men had been put out of the game.

The men, when booked at the Back Bay Station on a charge of stealing an auto tire and rim, gave their names as John J. Porter of No. 626 Tremont street, and Dennis Murphy of No. 31 Bay street, Cambridge.

RED SOX AFTER THE FINAL GAME

The Red Sox and Tigers will battle in the fifth game of the series this afternoon and Manager Jake Stahl has it all planned out for a win, making it four out of the five games in the series.

The Tigers took their first game yesterday in the poorest played game of the series. Both sides played some loose ball, making seven errors between them, Detroit five and Boston two. The Red Sox profited by Detroit errors as several runs resulted.

Of course the Red Sox are not expected to win all the time and Detroit is expected to win once in a while and yesterday was Detroit's turn. Manager Jennings was quite sore over the three straight defeats, two being shutouts, and he had instructed his boys to win and he did some heavy coaching on the side lines for a win.

BURY MARATHON VICTIM TODAY

STOCKHOLM, July 16.—Lazaro, who dropped dead after the Marathon, was buried here today. He left a young wife and child at his native place, Swindica, near Lisbon. The Portuguese minister, who remained at the hospital with him throughout the night, said that Lazaro before the race told him that he was quite fit and that he considered the course much easier than those to which he was accustomed.

BIG RACE MEET FOR LARCHMONT CLUB

NEW YORK, July 16.—It is confidently expected by the regatta committee of the Larchmont Yacht Club that all records for regattas will be broken at the annual race week of the organization that starts next Saturday and continues over Saturday, July 27. More than 150 boats will start in the different classes. This will be the largest number of starters ever seen at an American regatta. Entries have been received from all parts of the Atlantic coast.

PLAN RECEPTION FOR GUTTERSON

SPRINGFIELD, Vt., July 16.—There is a movement on foot to give a reception to Albert L. Gutterson, world's record winner at the running broad jump at Stockholm, on his return home. Subscription papers are being circulated. A loving cup will be presented to him.

Pilgrims Are All Star Batters Called Stationary Base Runners

BY BILL BAILEY.

CHICAGO, July 16.—It's too bad that they don't have some kind of a prize for the team getting the smallest number of runs on the largest number of hits.

If they did the Boston Pilgrims would have that prize cinch. And it surely would help the game a whole lot if those National League fans in the city of beans, culture and the Pilgrims could draw some kind of a prize.

And by the same token it's no wonder that John Kling goes scouting occasionally. He probably would be mad if he didn't. Because Kling sure played with a baseball club that could convert hits into runs.

A man who likes hitting—good, hard, clean lamesting—should have seen the Pilgrims. But if the same man likes to see runs come as a result of hitting, then he should take a vacation during the Boston series. And also those Pilgrims should be known as the "Pitchers' Delight." They lambast the ball. But they get nowhere. Of course, they get to first all right, but they don't score, and that's about all that can damage the reputation of a twirler.

Take that first game between the Cubs and the Pilgrims. The fellows from Boston fell all over Kling. They hammered him for twelve safe ones. They were not of the infield or scratch variety, either. They were good, hard, clean swats, yet they lost, 4 to 2.

It was an easy Cub victory despite the fact that the West Siders were outhit by twelve safe ones to seven.

"Give us hitting," howl the fans in Wrigley. That is, everywhere except down in Boston.

"Give us runs," is their howl. They get all the pitting they care to look at. The trouble is that it produces nothing.

"Aw!" say you, "but you are drawing the comparison on the one game."

Not on your life. It's drawn on the season's play of the fellows from Boston. They have a team average of .271. The Cubs are hitting .268, yet the West Siders are in second place and the Pilgrims are in eighth.

The records will also show you that they have made more base hits than any team in the National League, with the exception of New York.

Yet they are trailing.

The chances are that Cheney would never have survived had his opponents been other than the Pilgrims in the game.

The way they stepped up to the plate and slammed into the ball was a caution. Apparently Chance knew his victims and was always satisfied that the decisive blow would never be struck.

And the funny part of it is that it seemed difficult to account for the inability of the fellows from Boston to convert their base hits into runs.

Yankee Boys Real Olympic Heroes

Big Day of Rejoicing on Finland

STOCKHOLM, July 16.—Thousands of persons visited the Hotel Finland, upon which the American athletes are living during their stay in Stockholm, and showered congratulations upon the victors of the International Olympic games today. The heroes of the hour were James Thorpe, the Carlisle Indian School athlete; "Ted" Meredith of the Mercersburg, Pa., Academy; little Gaston Strobino, the Paterson, N. J., marathoner; Charles Reidpath, the speedy Syracuse University runner, and Patrick McDonald, the big New York policeman, who showed up so brilliantly in the weight-putting events.

But these athletic conquerors did not monopolize the honors. Those who are interested in swimming looked upon Duke Kahanamoku, the Hawaiian manikin, as an athlete as great as any other. The Americans held a levee and the floor dying the Star Spangled Banner was a centre of social activity throughout the day.

Many Prepare for Home Trip.

Many of the American spectators who had not had an opportunity to greet "our boys" went out to the ship to pay their regards. Many of the other visitors were foreigners, who looked with deep admiration upon the brawny representatives of Uncle Sam.

Some of the athletes put in part of the day seeing the sights of the city, while others made preparations to depart tomorrow for Dover, England, whence they will sail Sunday on the Vaderland for New York.

The scenes on the Finland today were in marked contrast to those following the Olympic games in London four years ago. At that time considerable ill feeling was allowed to show itself. In the present instance about the only ill feeling that has been manifested has appeared in the London press.

The Americans have voted Swedes among the best entertainers in the world, and this feeling has been reciprocated as regards the guests.

The trophies won by the Americans were placed upon view on the Finland. Thorpe, the dark-hued Indian or the real American as he is jokingly called by many here, had the best showing among the trophies.

Thorpe is particularly proud of the decathlon trophy offered by the Czar of Russia, which carries with it the unwritten appellation of the "Best all-round athlete in the world."

All the Americans are jubilant and have already begun to count days toward the 1916 Olympiad which would be held in Berlin. Trainer Mike Murphy said this afternoon: "I am positive that our present team could beat any other nation in the world in a dual meet.

"Nowhere in the world could be found better sportsmen and all-round fine gentlemen than in Sweden. We have nothing but praise for our hosts."

United States Commissioner James E. Sullivan expressed similar sentiments.

"Winning of the fifth renewal of the Olympiad is certainly a magnificent and splendid victory. Everything has passed off smoothly and pleasantly. The death of Lazaro, the Portuguese marathon runner, was the only touch of sadness. That was unavoidable."

Old-Timers Show Up Poorly.

The games just ended have brought forth new champions and have demonstrated that "youth will be served." One of the features of an analysis of the result is the unexpectedly poor showing of former Olympic champions.

Ralph Rose, the Columbia shot-putter; Melvin W. Sheppard, the New York runner; George Horine, the California high jumper; James Duncan, the New York discus thrower, and others who did phenomenal work in Olympic or other games in the past showed up poorly.

John Paul Jones, the Cornell runner, was another who fell below expectations. On the other hand James Thorpe, the Carlisle Indian; Meredith, the great schoolboy runner; Reidpath, the record-breaker, and others who were not regarded as exceptional, showed up as marvels. The program following consisted of competing contests and swimming and attracted but little attention.

America Was First in 16 Events

Yankee Team Best Assembled

By MICHAEL C. MURPHY,
Trainer of the American Olympic Team.

STOCKHOLM, July 16.—We finished the athletic section of the Olympic games yesterday with all the victories that I expected.

We won the 1,600-metre relay with little opposition, and James Thorpe, the wonderful all-around athlete from Carlisle Indian School, set a record in the decathlon which will not be equalled in a long time. America registered eighty-five points in the track and field events. I am well pleased that Sweden won the two events we lost yesterday. The Swedes certainly must be commended for the admirable spirit and courage they have shown throughout the meet, as well as the unquestionable fairness they have displayed.

While Sweden has not made as fine a showing in the first places as has the United States, I am sure she could beat any other country in Europe in a dual meet. Nowhere in the world could be found better sportsmen and all-round fine gentlemen than the Swedes have proven.

The boys under my charge like your were the greatest aggregation of athletes ever assembled under one flag. It made a finer showing in track and field events than any other team ever sent out by the United States. We won sixteen first places, to say nothing of the seconds and thirds.

Let me say that many of our boys who took seconds and thirds deserve as much credit as those who got firsts. In the 800-metre race for instance, a small blunder could have covered the first three Americans. We had four men in the 1,500 metres who were practically as good as the winner. Thus it was in nearly all the events.

The American system of developing athletes in the schools and public playgrounds, I firmly believe, is in a great measure responsible for the unquestionable supremacy of our country over the entire world. I do not see how any nation can ever wrest the leadership from us. Only when one considers the fearful handicaps under which our team was built up and trained can the results be fully appreciated.

The men who won for the United States at the games in this city are mostly men who began training after the 1908 Olympiad at London. And only unusual men on this team will be able to win places against the new crop of performers that will try for the 1916 team.

I hope that every American boy will follow the examples set by the members of this wonderful team. Live clean lives and develop strong bodies.

I am very glad to say that there is handily an injury among the members of my team. In view of the handicaps under which we trained I expected more breakdowns. But all the boys went about their work with rare good judgment, and the result proved that the maximum number were in championship form, when called upon to show their best, despite lack of proper training and the disadvantages of foreign climate.

The Marathon men in particular are in fine shape, and nearly all of them could go out within a week and run the race over again.

Johnny Hayes, the hero of 1908 and winner of the Marathon at London, is being congratulated on every hand for his good work in training the Marathoners. The fact that ten of our twelve starters finished among the first twenty, is still the talk of the city. In many respects this is considered a greater achievement than to have won the race.

Our team breaks up this afternoon. Some of the boys will return to America at once. Others will remain on the continent a few weeks.

Our stay in Sweden has been the most pleasant imaginable. Not only have the Swedes proven royal entertainers, but the management of the games has been as close to perfection as could well be imagined.

CHICAGO HURLERS WIN.

CHICAGO, July 16.—Chicago won the United States hurling championship here yesterday by defeating the Detroit fifteen by a score of 10 to 5. The game was witnessed by 12,000 persons.

FANS HUSTLING FOR BIG SERIES

They can't come too big for the Red Sox!

Athletics, Senators, Tigers—they all look alike to Boston's speed boys.

Talk about a ball-raising world's series contest—it certainly looks like a grand rearing old time at the 1912 championship games when the Red Sox and the Giants fight it out for baseball's highest honors.

The AMERICAN is going to send the twenty most popular fans in New England to attend the world's series games, wherever they may be played, all expenses paid.

The trips are yours for the asking! All is the world that anyone has to do is to ask their friends here, there and everywhere to save the AMERICAN coupons for them.

Be ONE of the twenty!

You can! It's easy!

Use that nomination blank NOW and get your 800 extra votes.

The regular vote value during the contest will be two votes daily and ten votes Sunday. And under no circumstances will the votes value be changed during the contest.

The Contest Editor wishes to emphasize this point, so that all contestants will know it at all times just where they're at.

Better let's have YOUR nomination NOW so that we will get it in the first mail tomorrow.

Russian Champion in Chess Tourney

BRESLAU, July 16.—Chess enthusiasts gathered here to attend the meeting of the German Chess Association to witness the play in the international masters' tournament, the chief feature of the congress, were agreeably surprised to learn of the arrival of A. K. Rubinstein, the Russian champion and winner of this year's tournament at San Sebastian, who, on account of the impending Russian national tournament, had not been expected to take part here.

Besides Russia five other countries are represented in the list of eighteen masters participated in the competition, namely America, England, Germany, Austria and Hungary.

The United States is represented by Captain Frank J. Marshall of New York, Dr. S. Tarrasch, the German champion, and Carl Schlechter, the famous Austrian champion, are also among the contestants.

Other favorites for high honors are R. Spielmann, R. Teichmann and O. S. Duras.

$6,000 FIRE MENACES HEART OF MELROSE

The heart of the city of Melrose was menaced early today by a blaze in Franklin Hall, a two-story wooden building on Essex street. The nearest corner of the C. B. & F. H. Gore Stables had caught when the department arrived. The damage was about $6,000.

SEE SOX PLAY; BIG GAMES FREE

It's getting to be a habit among the baseball fans! What? Why, the AMERICAN free baseball tickets, of course. Do you want to see the Red Sox play? Well, then, your attention for a moment.

When you buy the AMERICAN today just ask your newsboy or newsdealer for a baseball ticket. He will give you one.

Every day the AMERICAN will print fifty numbers. Glance over the number carefully and if one of them corresponds with the ticket which you hold just bring it to the AMERICAN Promotion Department, No. 5 Winthrop square, and receive a grandstand seat to the Red Sox game.

TWO OLD CHURCHES TO CONSOLIDATE

After several unsuccessful attempts made during the past twenty years to unite the First Parish and the Winthrop Congregational Churches of Charlestown, the members have finally voted to consolidate, and committees have been appointed to perfect details.

NEW HONOR FOR CHICAGO

CHICAGO, July 16.—Chicago won the United States hurling championship here by defeating the Detroit 15 by a score of 10 to 5. The game was witnessed by 12,000 persons.

Joe Jeannette Puts Two "Hopes" to Sleep

NEW BEDFORD, July 16.—Joe Jeannette won two easy victories before the New Bedford A. C. stepping both Jeff Madden of Boston and Mickey McDonough of Brooklyn in quick time.

McDonough made a pitiable showing, being in no condition to fight and lasting less than two rounds. Madden put up a fair amount of resistance till the fourth round, when Jeannette knocked him out.

Cy Morgan Is Sent Back to the Minors

PHILADELPHIA, July 16.—The first break in the quartet of great pitchers that helped to bring two American League pennants in this city came when Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics, released Harry R. (Cy.) Morgan to the Kansas City team of the American Association.

Morgan came to the Philadelphia team in 1909 as the result of a trade with the Boston Americans.

RECOVER BODY OF MELVIN VANIMAN

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 16.—The bodies of Melvin Vaniman and Frederick Elmer, two of the five victims of the airship Akron, which exploded while sailing over Brigantine Beach July 2, have been recovered and brought to this city. All the victims' bodies have now been found.

Nearly everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

Norman Cup Given to Yacht Winners

MARBLEHEAD, July 16.—Many of the yachts of the Eastern Yacht Club, which took part in the recent cruise, as well as the three which participated in the race back from Bar Harbor for the Norman cups, are at anchor in the harbor here.

The winners of the Norman cups this year were the schooners Irolita, owned by E. Walter Clark of Philadelphia, and the Vagrant, owned by Harold S. Vanderbilt of New York, in the sloop prize was won by Commodore Robert Paine.

The Shimoa won the prize offered by John C. Cobb for the three yachts sailing in one class.

The corrected times of the yachts were as follows:

Shimoa, R. L. Paine, 25:35:47.
Vagrant, H. S. Vanderbilt, 26:00:34.
Irolita, E. Walter Clark, 27:31:45.

Giants Pay $8,000 for Rookie Twirler

HOLYOKE, July 16.—The New York Nationals today bought Pitcher Paddy Green of the Holyoke club of the Connecticut League for $8,000, the highest price ever paid for a player in the league.

Green, who is a large young man, never pitched professional ball until last April, when he joined the Holyoke team, but has since made a splendid record. Four major league clubs have tried to purchase him. He comes from Huntington, this State, and was a woodchopper.

BUCK CROUSE WINS.

NEW YORK, July 16.—The fight between Buck Crouse of Pittsburgh and Dave Kurtz of Newark, at Madison Square Garden was stopped in the eighth round by the referee because Kurtz, on the scales weighed the Newark boy that the latter was fighting under a great disadvantage. He was being worn down by Crouse's superior weight when the fight was stopped.

NEW STAR FOR PHILLIES.

CINCINNATI, July 16.—Pitcher Nicholson, formerly with the Huntington (W. Va.) club of the Mountain State league, was signed by the Philadelphia National league club here. Manager O'Day of the Cincinnati club made an unsuccessful effort to secure the service of Nicholson.

Getting On In Life

THE PROOF OF THE PUDDING.

By THOMAS TAPPER

1.

FEW people, so if is said, have it in them to be a Lincoln or an Edison.

But how do we know this?

Who knows what any boy or girl may be until the boy or girl have tried in every way possible to find out just what there is in them?

When they tell you to be content with the simple life, not to want money, not to care for the things that people prize, do not be too quick to act on this advice.

You do not go to bed at 5 in the afternoon for two reasons:

First—You are not tired at 5 in the afternoon.

Second—You like to be up and see what is going on in the evening.

The same with holds good in life.

Do not shut yourself up in a narrow and restricted way of living too soon. Make up your mind that you have a share in the good things of life. (See rules later on). This is like going to bed early in the afternoon. You miss a lot and you miss doing a lot.

Now, any one of us can have our share of life's good things provided (and here are the rules):

1. We think about the work we are going to do.

2. We think about the work we are doing.

3. We think about the work, of a harder kind, we want to do.

This sort of a programme acts in an interesting way—about like this:

1. It keeps you thinking.

2. And that keep you awake.

3. And, being awake, you know what is going on.

4. And when you know what is going on, you are in a fair way to find your chance.

5. And when you have found your chance, all the rest is easy.

6. Then you will have opportunity and money; and if you want the simple life you can have that, too.

But remember the simple life belongs to the independent man.

Mr. Edison has money, and he certainly makes opportunity. Yet he sleeps only about four hours, and eats practically less than any other hard working man in the United tates.

If he wanted to, he could have duck, plum pudding and champagne three times a day. Why does he not want these things? He can pay for them. The answer is simple:

He would rather get the work out of Mr. Edison than put ducks and plum pudding into him.

This is the type of simple life for you to go after. Get work out of yourself, with plenty of effort in it. Don't live for plum pudding; live for what you can do.

This is the simplest game in the world. And yet—

More men play pinochle every day than play this great game of getting on.

More women play bridge whist every try to get acquainted with the power and character of the soul they hope, some day, to serve.

It is all a matter of choice until the day you are scared to death, and then the plum pudding and the pinochle can do so little for the soul you want to save that you turn to them.

II.

Well, mister, if the rule is so simple, why isn't everybody at work on it?

I do not know. I think that a bit of plum pudding that is not too rich is even better to him than the soul which he cannot see—or, rather, will not see.

There may be some other reason. But, after all, it must be the plum pudding.

Successful men have been praising work and its rewards for six thousand years, and they still have a small audience.

They have kept on singing for sixty centuries that you can have all you want if you are willing to keep busy.

And still most people want it without work.

So I think it is the plum pudding that wrecks this chance in life.

But it may be the duck or the pinochle.

BEAUTIFUL HANDS AND ARMS

A FAMOUS BEAUTY GIVES HER SECRET TO THE WORLD.

A Free Prescription You Can Prepare At Your Own Home.

Many women take perfect care of their face and clothes, yet neglect their hands. Rough, red hands are always unattractive as ill-kept teeth.

It is a simple matter to keep your hands smooth and beautiful. The following prescription, which you can compound at your own home, is famous for the many remarkable results it gives:

Get from your druggist one ounce of Kuhn Compound. Put it in a two-ounce bottle, add quarter of an ounce of witch hazel, fill with water and shake well.

You will be surprised at the result when applied to your hands, arms or neck. Blemishes of every kind disappear as if by magic. Freckles, tan, rough skin, coarse pores, yield instantly to this application. This is the private prescription of a famous Parisian beauty.

The Making of a Pretty Girl

The Miss Who Thinks She's Stupid

By MARGARET HUBBARD AYER

DEAR MISS AYER:

I am a girl of eighteen, and am considered attractive looking, but I am so discouraged because it seems impossible for me to be even ordinarily entertaining in society. I can't remember people's names or faces, unless I have seen them often, and this makes me so embarrassed that I am just stupid. Also I never have anything to say in conversation. Do you know of any way that I could learn to remember names and faces, and is there any book I can get that would tell about the art of conversing? SENSITIVE.

POOR Sensitive! You are one of many who would like to learn the complete art of polite and witty conversation in ten lessons. There is nothing more discomforting in the world than to be an attractive looking girl and to realize that one becomes tongue-tied the moment one is expected to entertain a guest.

A great many girls acquire the gift of gab at an early age, and thereafter never stop long enough to give their unfortunate families time to recover, so that really, my dear Sensitive, you are lucky in one way, for nobody will wish to run away from you because of your chattering tongue. Of course, you are suffering agony because you never know what topic of conversation to begin on, and when you look into the face of a stranger who has just been introduced your mind at once becomes a blank. But really it might be worse. Until you find your tongue and become an easy conversationalist, you might practice being a good listener. If the guests you want to entertain are men, you will find that listening is more profitable than speech.

Few women are attentive listeners, and nothing is so flattering and so courteous as the attitude of the good listener.

Cultivate the art of listening, and at the same time make little mental notes of questions which arise in your mind, and which will keep the one-sided conversation going in case slow speaker should subside.

The reason most women and almost all girls are poor conversationalists is that they can't keep their minds on the subject in hand.

Don't Be Self-Conscious

The average girl talks about one thing and thinks about another, and the conversation soon lags.

The reason that most women and nearly all girls are poor conversationalists is because they can't keep their minds on the subject at hand.

To be entertaining and bright requires concentration of mind and effort.

You can't converse intelligently on general topics and keep thinking about yourself; how you look and what impression you are making. The self-conscious girl is never good at entertaining others because she is so busy worrying about herself.

I can tell you how two young women succeeded in making excellent and entertaining talkers of themselves, and this may give you a pointer to help you in the difficult art of conversation.

These two girls were about eighteen years of age, and they were the daughter and niece of a widower who was very fond of entertaining and looked to his two girls to play the part of hostesses. They had to meet strangers, both men and women, and were always at a loss for a subject to talk about after they had exhausted the topic of the weather.

A dinner had been planned to which a number of boresome people were invited, and the two girls realized that there would be no conversation at the table unless it was supplied by them, so they desperately set about to read up jokes and anecdotes, selecting such as would be more or less appropriate to the occasion and the guests invited. They wrote outlits of conversation that would lead up to these anecdotes. They learned this conversation and the anecdotes by heart, and when the much dreaded entertainment took place they surprised their guests and themselves by their brilliant and almost spectacular display of wit and anecdotes.

A Good Lesson

In that one evening they achieved a reputation for cleverness which they were forced to live up to, and they read up and learned by heart all the witty stories and jokes which they could get hold of. The knowledge that they could be entertaining soon made them self-possessed enough to bring out shy and retiring guests and lead them on to talk on interesting subjects. The girls made a rule never to gossip, never to talk about themselves, never to say a mean or unkind thing about anyone else; when all topics failed they told one of their carefully prepared stories, and they are now two of the most popular women I have ever known.

As to "Sensitive's" other request, that has to do with the training of memory, and while there are several excellent memory schools, the cultivation of memory is founded on attention and concentration. You should be able to develop your own memory, first by closer observation, and then by "willing" yourself to retain the impressions your mind has received.

When you meet a new face observe that face carefully and note its characteristic points and store them away in your mind. Probably you are not a good observer, anyhow. Go into a strange room, glance around, come out and see if you are able to describe accurately most of the things you have seen. Practise looking into shop windows for instance, then turn away after about half a minute, and see how much your memory retains of what you have looked at. You can develop your memory for things and faces in this way.

What to Do

As to memory for names, you can strengthen that, first by associating the name with some impression or idea which you can link with it in your mind. If you cannot do it any other way, write down the name of each new person whom you meet, with the descriptions of that person, some special characteristic you have observed, and, if possible, any ideas about the occupation and interests of your new acquaintance.

Many a society woman famous for her wonderful memory for names and faces keeps such a book, and one of our most famous Presidential candidates kept a card index of all the people that he knew, their interests, hobbies, etc., tabulated according to towns. During the campaign he'd come to some little "jumping off" place and, having carefully looked up his acquaintances in that town, he would clap them joyfully on the back and inquire intensely about their affairs, displaying a marvellous knowledge of their family history. His popularity was astounding, and he never was a never without the famous card index.

Hunting a Husband

No. 17—Maynard Fails to Get the Widow's Letter Dismissing Him, and She Is Greatly Mortified

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

BEATRICE was up and at work early on the morning after Helen's call, considering it unlucky that she had seen only a few times since it was made. She would not wear the costume in which she had appeared at that first dinner weeks ago—the dinner at which she had met Maynard—because that would remember the dress, and every woman has a dread of making it possible for another woman to say truthfully, "There's that same old frock again!"

So Beatrice worked deftly at a soft black crepe de chine which had been fashioned with a lace yoke and sleeves. These she removed, producing the decollete effect she desired. Folds of chiffon at the shoulders, and sleeves reaching to the elbows, finished with a graceful ruffle of black lace, threw into relief her fair skin. She knew that she need not be ashamed of her appearance as she tried on the completed product. By artificial light the effect would be especially good.

Late in the afternoon came a box emblazoned with the name of a fashionable florist. In it was a heap of fragile, delicately-tinted orchids. Accompanying the box was a note. Beatrice gazed at the flowers and read the note with the naive delight of a girl in her teens.

"My Dear Child—Away again on business. To Chicago this time, so I shan't see you until a week from Saturday. Helen has told me of her dinner company tonight. Please wear these flowers then, and think of me in a while during the swaying of the dinner at which I met you, and of your old friend HENRY D. BLANCHARD."

"Oh, he is a dear!" exclaimed the widow. It is strange how a little concrete evidence of affection will call forth more real appreciation from a woman than do unfailing self-sacrifice and unselfish devotion. A pessimist has declared that "tact and an open purse will win any woman."

Some Truth in Maxim

As with all cynical maxims, there are many exceptions to this one. Nevertheless, a grain of truth lurks within it. Unobtrusive fidelity may pass unnoticed and unpraised by its object, while a gift bestowed, or an extravagance done in a woman's honor will bring tears of joy to her eyes and exclamations of gratitude to her lips. If more husbands appreciated this fact they would not forget to carry home the occasional box of candy or basket of fruit which seems to an unthinking wife to denote greater devotion than do weeks of uncomplaining and wearing toil for wife and children.

This day was destined to be one of surprises for Beatrice Minor, and not all of them were pleasant. At 6 o'clock the postman brought her a letter bearing a special delivery stamp. The envelope was crossed and disfigured by directions and re-directions in red ink. It had been addressed in haste. The postmark was that of another city and had been stamped early the preceding morning. The writing was Maynard's. Tearing the letter open Beatrice read:

"Dear Lady—An unsuccessful attempt to catch you by 'phone disappointed me in my hope of hearing your voice this morning. I am leaving hurriedly for the West on a trip as tiresome as it is important, and on two hours' notice. Forgive my inability to spend this evening with you and try to believe that I shall be with you in spirit. Hastily, but always yours, ROBERT MAYNARD."

"Then," said Beatrice slowly to herself in the silence of her own room, "he never received my letter."

Worried and chagrined, she called up the district messenger office and asked to have the matter of the delivery of her note investigated. She learned that the letter she had sent by the messenger boy the morning before had been delivered at Robert Maynard's office and signed for by one of his clerks.

An Embarrassing Position.

What could she do? It was out of the question for her to ask Maynard's clerk to return the letter to her, for that would place her in an embarrassing position, and the man would have no right to comply with her request. Moreover, she wished Robert to receive the fright little note; she wanted him to understand that she meant to have nothing more to do with him. And yet here he was writing to her, all unconscious of the bomb that was lying in a dainty envelope in Boston. Or, perhaps his mail would be forwarded to him. Well, she hoped it would be, and at once.

Her futile impatience at the thought that her feminine thunderbolt had, apparently, been dissipated into thin air, was increased to helpless anger and consternation when, an hour after the arrival of the letter a five-pound box of her favorite chocolates was left at the door, and, on opening the parcel, she found Maynard's card inside. Before leaving town he had evidently directed the confectioner to send the bonbons to-day. Had he been aware of her determination to break with him and desired to punish her for writing the letter which he had not received, he could not have devised a wiser or more effectual course than that which he was pursuing in his endeavor to please her.

The woman eyed the chocolates distastefully. "They would choke me if I tried to eat them!" she exclaimed. "The children like them, of course, but such a feast would make them ill for a week. What shall I do with them?"

What Should She Do?

The thought of taking them over to Helen flitted through her mind, but she dismissed it as absurd. Women do not give each other five-pound boxes of candy at $1 a pound, she reflected, and Helen would be sure to suspect that there was some reason for such a sudden and unprecedented exhibition of generosity. No, she would just put the box away for a few days and try to forget the matter. With which resolution she suited the action to the word, turning the key in the lock of the drawer in which she deposited the sweetmeats as if this action would also turn a key on her thoughts.

"I'm not going to think of them nor of the sender again to-night" she vowed.

But she had made this decision without taking into consideration a lover's ingenuity—especially with a lover as persistent a person as Robert Maynard. Ten minutes later Mary knocked at her door and informed her that a certain florist had just telephoned to say that a gentleman had left directions with him to send Mrs. Minor flowers three times a week, and should he deliver them in the mornings or afternoons? When Beatrice found herself coloring confusedly under the maid's curious gaze she replied curtly, "In the afternoons!" and felt that the climax of her endurance had been reached. For was not a man whom, she had declared both to herself and to Helen, she disliked, sending her flowers and candy as though he were certain of her favor, and—fatal item —was he not utterly inaccessible by letter until his indefinite return?

A dozen wild schemes ran through her brain. She would telephone his office and get his address; she would return the candy and refuse to receive the flowers. But her breeding and modesty interfered to forbid her carrying out any of the suggestions of her overexcited mind, and, although she managed to appear calm, she set forth for Helen's house in a different frame of mind from that in which she had expected to attend the dinner.

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

THE CLINGING VINE

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

SO many vital questions come up for discussion at the Making Life More Beautiful Club that Daysey Mayme Appleton, its president, is urging that the most vital be sent to The Hague for solution.

The story books say a man is "masterful," but in real life the women hand it to him without sugar by saying he is "bossy." And they handle him in this careless, ungloved way in their decisions at the sessions of the Making Life More Beautiful Club.

A recent decision covered the statement that it is better to go hungry than to eat when cross.

"If our husbands," the club members decided, "adopted that plan, they would starve to death."

At a recent meeting, one woman said she had been criticised unfavorably because she so often went out of town. "I go," she said, "because the only time my husband ever kisses me is when I take a train." Met with sighs from the wives who still cherish ideals, and by snorts from those who don't.

But the real excitement was caused over an attempt to define the duties of a wife whose husband's ideal woman is "The Clinging Vine."

It began with the testimony of a militant wife, whose hair fairly stood out on her head in resentment and anger.

"I arise," she said, the willow plumes on her hat standing up like the quills of an angered porcupine, "at six in the morning.

"I get breakfast for a family of five; dress the three children for school, do the cleaning, and get to my office at nine.

"I work there till five, and after I get home at night I find time to get dinner, take care of my home, wait on my husband and children, and some time, somewhere, during the week's regular routine I find time to wash, iron, bake, sew and mend.

"I earn more than my husband, and have done more than he toward our support since the day I married him. But I have never complained.

"The other evening," her voice so quivered with indignation she had to pause. A sympathetic woman handed her a drink, and, controlling her emotion, she resumed.

"The other evening we had the preacher for supper, and my husband told him that his ideal woman was the Clinging Vine!"

Here she snorted so violently that the laces of her straight-front corset began to pop like popcorn over a hot blaze.

"What I want to know is this: Can a woman support her family, and wash and scrub and bake and be a Clinging Vine at the same time?"

A murmur of protest and sympathy arose all over the hall. Seventeen women stood at once. Daysey Mayme rapped for order in vain, and the meeting disbanded in confusion.

However, it seemed to be the general verdict that a woman to be a Clinging Vine must have a husband who supports her. She must also board, and have no household cares of any kind.

"Women can't be a Clinging Vine," was the consensus of opinion, "if the man she marries isn't strong enough to cling to."

So much interest was aroused it was decided to ask The Hague to investigate the wage-earning ability of any man who says his ideal woman is a Clinging Vine. Either he must be capable of earning a good salary, or be compelled to change his ideal.

Swift & Company's sales of Fresh Beef in Boston for the week ending Saturday, July 15th, averaged 11.65 cents per pound. 99

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

HUSBAND, sed Ma last nite, we are going to have some company tonite. A friend of my brother, named Frank Ware, is going to bring up a editor to the house. Mister Tom Donnelly, of Waterville, Maine. He is the editor of the Waterville Sentinel, sed Ma, & the minnit my brother told me he was a newspaper man I thought you wud like to meet him.

Indeed I wud, sed Pa. I have grown grate of late, Pa sed to Ma, but I often think that the realy grotest days of my life was when I was the editor of the Chippewa Falls Herald. In them days, sed Pa, I cud rite what I wanted to and rite it any way wanted to. It often like to set now & look over them editorials that I used to rite about the County Board, sed Pa.

I dident know you then, sed Ma, but from what you have shown me since I have known you I dount imagine you ever roasted the County Board or any other board very hard.

I pever roasted them, sed Pa. I was always fair wen I was a country editor.

What did the County Board hand you in reeturn? sed Ma. I'll bet you they gave you the county printing.

Yes ber they did, sed Pa, & I do not blush to confess it. I wasent a country editor for my health. Maybe I will be able to give Mister Donnelly sum points wen he calls on me.

Wen then Mister Donnelly & Mister Ware came in. I knew the minnit I seen them that Pa cuddent give them very many pointers, they heath looked too smart. I guess Pa thought the same thing, but he had to bluff a littel beekaus Ma was looking at him all the time, & Ma is offal hard to fool.

How do you do, yung man? sed Pa to Mister Donnelly. I am very glad to welcum you and your frend Ware to my house. I am always glad to mingle my mind with other yung, brite minds, Pa sed. My wife tells me that you are running a newspaper up in Maine.

Yes, sir, sed Mister Donnelly. I am doing very well for a yung chap. Waterville is a pritty town, & there is a lot of realy perpul there.

I always like to meet yung editors, sed Pa. I was a yung editor, ounst myself. I am always glad, therefore, to extend a helping hand to a younger member of Newspaperdom, Pa sed.

Thank you very much, sed Mister Donnelly, but I dount think I will need any help. I calm here to visit for a few moments & then I will have to be on my way. I with you cum up to Maine & bring the wife & the kid, he sed.

I mite do it at that, sed Pa. I cud spend a few weeks there, & wile I was there I cud help you out a lot by riteing sum editorials for you.

I am afrade there is no opening on our staff, sed Mister Donnelly. Times is tight now, & I can rite all the stoff that our paper needs.

Then Pa got kind of red in the face beekaus he heard Ma laffing. Ma had seen Mister Donnelly wink at Mister Ware. Pa iasent used to gitting turned down by a editor, & that is why he got red.

After the company had went Pa sed to Ma, wife, I like that yung editor & wod like to help him.

The way he looks to me, sed Ma, I guess he can help hisself.

"Cost you money? In what way?"

"Well, my wife proposes to give a big dinner party, so that she can snub Mrs. Exe by not inviting her!" sighed the poor husband wearily.

A Mysterious Disappearance — One of the Greatest Detective Stories Ever Written — By Gordon Holmes

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

PART II.—(Continued.)

Copyright, 1908, by Edward J. Clode.

"WELL, Mr. Bruce, we must do something. If you don't like to interfere then I must."

"There is but one person in the world who can enlighten us as to the facts. That person is obviously Sir Charles Dyke himself."

"Unquestionably."

Bruce looked at his watch. It was 10:30 p. m. He rose.

"Let us go to him," he said.

"But he is not in London."

"He is. I expect you will find that he gave orders for no one to be admitted, and told the servants to say he had left town to make the denial more emphatic."

"It will be a terrible business, I fear, Bruce."

"I dread it—on my soul I do. But I cannot shirk this final attempt to save my friend. My presence may tend to help forward a final and full explanation. No matter what the pain to myself, I must be present. Come, it is late already!"

Sir Charles Dyke's Journey.

THE streets were comparatively deserted as they drove quickly up Whitehall and crossed the south side of Trafalgar square. It is a common belief, even among Londoners themselves, that the traffic is dense in the main thoroughfares at all hours of the night until 12 o'clock has long past.

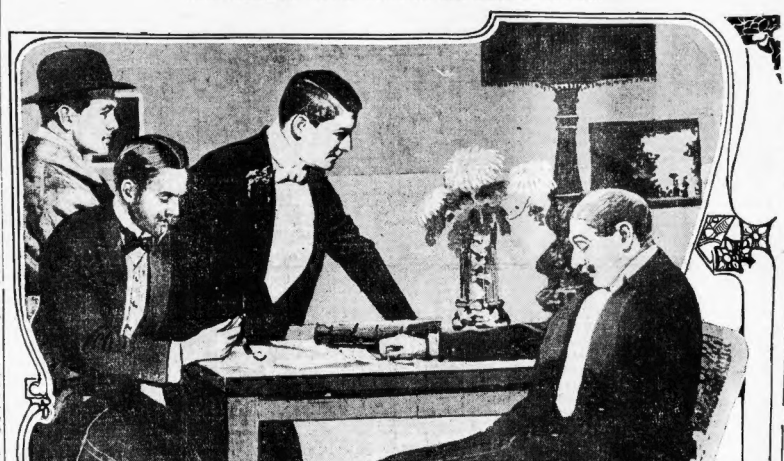
But to the experienced eye there is a marked hiatus between 9:30 and 11 o'clock. At such a time Charing Cross is negotiable, Piccadilly Circus loses much of its terror, and a hansom may turn out of Regent street into Oxford street without the fare being impelled to clutch convulsively at the brass window slide in a make-believe effort to save the vehicle from being crushed like a walnut shell between two heavy busses.

Such considerations did not appeal to the barrister and his companion on this occasion.

For some inexplicable cause they both felt that they were in a desperate hurry.

A momentary stoppage at the turn into Orchard street caused each man to swear, quite unconsciously. Now that the supreme moment in this most painful investigation was at hand they resented the slightest delay. Though they were barely fifteen minutes in the cab, it seemed an hour before they alighted at Wensley House, Portman Square.

SIR CHARLES DYKE GOES ON HIS LAST JOURNEY.



A few minutes later they found him listlessly drooping over the side of the chair in which he was seated.
(Posed by Charles Winninger (White), William P. Carleton (Bruce), and Alexander Clarke (Dyke), of "The Wall Street Girl" company.)

In response to an imperative ring a footman appeared. Instead of answering the barrister's question as to whether Sir Charles was at home or not, he said: "You are Mr. Bruce, sir, aren't you?"

"Yes."

"Sir Charles is at home, but he retired to his room before dinner. He is not well, and he may have gone to bed, but he said that if you came you were to be admitted. I will ask Mr. Thompson."

"Better send Thompson to me," said Bruce decisively; and in a minute the old butler stood before him.

"I hear that Sir Charles has retired for the night," said Claude.

Thompson had caught sight of the detective standing on the steps. A few hours earlier he had himself told him that the baronet was out of town. It was an awkward dilemma, and he coughed doubtingly while he racked his brains for a judicious answer.

But Bruce grasped his difficulty. "It is all right, Thompson, Mr. White quite understands the position. Do you think Sir Charles is in bed?"

"I will go and see, sir. He was very anxious that you should be sent upstairs if you called. But that was when he was in the library."

Bruce and the detective entered the hall, the butler closed the door behind them and then solemnly ascended the stairs to Sir Charles Dyke's bedroom, which was situated on the first floor along a corridor toward the back of the house.

Sound Asleep

They distinctly heard the polite knock at the door and Thompson's query, "Are you asleep, Sir Charles?"

After a pause there was another knock and the same question in a slightly louder key.

Then the butler returned, saying as he came down the stairs:

"Sir Charles seems to be sound asleep, sir."

Bruce and the detective exchanged glances. The barrister was disappointed, almost perturbed, but he said:

"In that case we will not disturb him. Sir Charles does not often retire so early."

"No, sir. I have never known him to go to his room so early before. He told me not to serve dinner, as he wasn't well. He would not let me get anything for him. He just took some wine, and I have not seen him since."

"Since when?"

"About 7.30, sir."

Bruce turned to depart, but Thompson, with the privilege of an old servant when talking to one whom he knew to be on familiar terms with his master, whispered:

"That there blessed maid turned up again this afternoon, sir."

The barrister started violently.

"Not Jane Harding, surely?"

"Yes, sir. She came at four o'clock and asked for Sir Charles, as bold as brass."

"Did he see her?"

"Oh, yes sir."

"Do you hear that, White?"

The detective nodded.

"She must have reached the house about half an hour before me," he said, addressing the butler.

"That's about right, sir."

"But I understand," went on Bruce, "that Sir Charles was not at home to ordinary callers?"

Thompson shuffled about somewhat uneasily. He wished now he had held his tongue.

"I had my orders, sir," he murmured, in extenuation of his apparently diverse action.

"Tell me what your orders were," persisted Bruce.

The man hesitated, not wishful to offend his master's friend, but too well trained to reveal the explicit instructions given him by Sir Charles Dyke.

"Do not be afraid. I will explain everything to Sir Charles personally. We cannot best judge what to do—whether to wake him or not—unless we know the position," went on the barrister.

"I don't pretend to understand the reason, sir," he said, "but Sir Charles wrote this himself, and told me to be careful to obey him exactly."

The barrister eagerly grasped the note and read.

"If Mr. Bruce, Jane Harding or Mrs. Hillmer should call, admit any of them immediately. To all others say that I have left town—some days ago; should they ask you.

"C. D."

"That settles it, Mr. Bruce," he said. "We must see him."

"Thompson," said Bruce, "does Sir Charles usually lock his door?"

"Never, sir."

"Very well. Knock again, and then try the door. We will go with you."

Something in the barrister's manner rather than his words sent a cold shiver down the old butler's spine.

"I do hope there's nothing wrong, sir," he commenced; but Bruce was already half-way up the stairs. Both he and White guessed what had happened. They knew that poor Thompson's repeated summons at the bedroom door would remain forever unanswered—that the unfortunate baronet had quitted the dread certainties of this world for the uncertainties of the next.

Sir Charles Dead

They were not mistaken. A few minutes later they found him listlessly drooping over the side of the chair in which he was seated, partly undressed, and seemingly everycome at the moment when he was about to take off his boots.

On a table near him were two bottles, both half-emptied, and an empty wine glass. Each of the bottles bore the label of a well-known chemist. One was endorsed "Sleeping Draught," the other "Poison," and "Digoxal."

The three men were pale as the limp, inanimate form in the chair while they silently noted these details. Bruce raised the head of his friend in the hope that life might not yet be extinct. But Sir Charles Dyke had taken his measures effectually. Though the rigor mortis had not yet set in, he had evidently been dead some time.

"Sir Charles!" he wailed. "Sir Charles! For the love of heaven, speak to us. You can't be dead. Oh, you can't. It ain't fair. You're too young to die. What curse has come upon the house that both should go?"

"Thompson," he said, impressively, for now that the crisis he feared had come and gone he exercised full control over himself. "Thompson, if you ever wished to serve Sir Charles you must do so now by remaining calm. For his sake help us, and do not create an unnecessary scene."

Governed by the more powerful nature, the affrighted man struggled to his feet.

"What shall I do?" he whimpered. "Shall I send for a doctor?"

"Yes; say Sir Charles is very ill. Not a word to a soul about what has happened until we have carefully examined the room."

At that instant Mr. White caught sight of a large and bulky envelope, which had fallen to the floor near the chair on which Sir Charles was seated.

Picking it up, he found it was addressed, "Claude Bruce, Esq. To be delivered to him at once."

"This will explain matters, I expect," said the detective.

BEAUTY SECRETS FOR WOMEN

TO REMOVE AGE-MARKS—Stir 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine into ½ pint witch hazel (or hot water), then add 4 ounces spurmax. Apply this sparingly and rub lightly until it dries. The spurmax lotion is not visible when on, does not spot from perspiration and is not affected by the wind. The regular use of this lotion dispels oiliness and age-marks and gives to a rough, unlovely skin a fascinating tint and velvety smoothness. Those frequenting watering places will find the spurmax lotion of great value to keep the skin free from freckles as well as to protect it against sunburn and tan.

THIN, STUBBY LASHES—Apply plain pyroxin at bed-time with finger and forefinger and they will grow long and have a delightful curl. Eyebrows can be made to come in thick and glossy merely by rubbing pyroxin on with finger end. No very careful rubbing is needed, but don't get any pyroxin where no hair is wanted.

FOR A QUICK SHAMPOO—Dissolve a teaspoonful canthrox in a cup hot water, then wet the hair as you would in the case of soap. This makes an abundance of white, thick lather that instantly removes every particle of dust, dandruff and excess oil, leaving the scalp and hair clean and sweet. After a canthrox shampoo the hair dries quickly and easily, taking on that rich, glossy softness and silken fluff for which every woman strives. Canthrox is excellent for overcoming the "mat-ted, stringy" condition so common to hair in the winter.

TO CUT DOWN WEIGHT—The parrotis treatment is simple, safe and certain and requires no fatiguing exercises nor weakening diet. Just dissolve 4 ounces parrotis in 1½ pints hot water and it is ready. The dose is a tablespoonful before each meal, and the treatment should be continued until the weight is where you want it. You can then stop without any fear of its returning.

A Word to Women on Health Matters

Women are generally careful about the state of their health, and they are apt to make good use of remedies known as disease preventatives. Germicides and antiseptics are included in this class, but the greatest care should be exercised in using any which contain poisons, unless prescribed by a physician.

By reason of its absolute safety and its beneficial results, physicians generally have strongly recommended Tyree's Antiseptic Powder. It is unequalled as a preventative of contagious disease, unsurpassed as a douche and highly efficacious in avoiding infection, healing diseased tissues, ulcers and delicate membrane passages. Ideal and delicate for deodorizing sick rooms and general disinfecting purposes. A twenty-five-cent package makes 2 gallons standard solution. Sold by druggists everywhere. Ask your doctor or send for our booklet. J. S. Tyree, Chemist, Washington, D. C.

Up-to-the-Minute Jokes

Jones—Are you brave?

Smith—I am.

Jones—Then go to my wife and get the hatchkey, and tell her I'll be home later.

A gentleman from London was invited to go for "a day's snips shooting" in the country. The invitation was accepted, and host and guest shouldered guns and sallied forth in quest of game.

After a time a solitary snipe rose, and promptly fell to the visitor's first barrel.

"The host's face fell also.

"We may as well return," he remarked, gloomily, "for that was the only snipe in the neighborhood."

The bird had afforded excellent sport to all his friends for six weeks.

Mary had a little ring; 'twas given by her beau; and everywhere that Mary went that ring was sure to go.

She took the ring with her one day, when she went out to lot, where she might display it to the girls, who numbered twenty-three.

And when the girls all saw that ring, they made a great ado, exclaiming, with one voice: "Has it at last got round to you?"

* * *

Wealthy man (to beggar)—No I shall not assist you and you needn't envy my riches. With all my wealth I'm wretched, for I'm a martyr to indigestion.

Beggar—Well, guv'nor, I've cared a lot about indigestion, but I've never 'ad the chance of 'urting it. All I asks is, guv'nor, gimme the chance.

Mabel—Was your bazaar a success?

Gladys—Yes; indeed, the minister will have cause to be grateful.

"How much were the profits?"

"Nothing. The expenses were more than the receipts. But ten of us got engaged, and the minister is in for a good thing in wedding fees."

"Every husband ought to make his bride a regular allowance from the start," said Senator Depew, at a wedding reception. "This is but just," he continued, "because from the start every bride finds that she must constantly make allowances for her husband."

* * *

"Is she proper?"

"Proper? She's so proper she won't even accompany a man on the plane without a chaperon."

Office Boy—No, sir. Me and the cleaner spent half an hour studyin' 'em, and neither of us could see one of 'em.

HOW TO GROW HAIR ON A BALD HEAD

BY A SPECIALIST.

Thousands of people suffer from baldness and falling hair who, having tried nearly every advertised hair tonic and hair-grower without results, have resigned themselves to baldness and its attendant discomfort. Yet their case is not hopeless, for the following simple home prescription has made hair grow after years of baldness and is also unequalled for restoring gray hair to its original color, stopping hair from falling out, and destroying the dandruff germs. It will not make the hair grow long, as no put up by any druggist: Bay rum, 6 ounces; Lavona Compound, 2 ounces; Menthol Crystals, one-half dracham. If you wish it perfumed, add half to one teaspoonful of Yo-Kalon Perfume, which unites perfectly with the other ingredients. This preparation is highly recommended by physicians and specialists, and is absolutely harmless, as it contains none of the poisonous wood alcohol so frequently found in hair tonics. Do not apply to the face or where hair is not desired.

Girlish Complexion Now Easily Acquired

"A skin of blended snow, cream and rose" is the way an Ohio correspondent describes her newly acquired complexion. She is one who has adopted mercolized wax in place of cosmetics, massage, steaming and other methods. Many who have tried this marvelous wax report that its effects are quite different from those of any other treatment. It produces a complexion of exquisite girlish naturalness, rather than one having evidence of having been artificially "made over." One thus is indeed "Nature's own," the result of gradually absorbing dead particles of surface skin, permitting the younger, healthier skin beneath to show itself and giving its pores a chance to breathe. Mercolized wax, procurable at any drug store in original one-ounce package, is put on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

I have also had many favorable letters from those who have tried the wrinkle-removing face bath which I recommended recently. If any have mislaid the formula, here it is: 1 oz. powdered saxolite, dissolved in ½ pt. witch hazel.—Julia Orr in The Chatauquan.

"I was troubled with dandruff, which caused such severe itching that I could not sleep. It stifled onto my clothes in a very annoying way, and my hair began to disappear.

"Having tried many remedies without success, I finally bought a fifty-cent jar of Resinol Ointment, and rubbed it on my scalp twice a week, washing the hair every morning with Resinol Soap. In about a week I was entirely cured."

(Signed) FRED POLITO.

Resinol stops dandruff, itching scalp and loss of hair

Shampoo regularly with Resinol Soap. Its soothing, healing balsams insure a healthy scalp, free from dandruff and itching. This prevents loss of hair and permits its natural growth and beauty. Besides, Resinol Soap is one of the very few soaps that contains no alkali—always so drying and irritating to the hair.

In severe cases of dandruff, scalp-crusts and falling hair, a little Resinol Ointment should be gently massaged into the scalp at night, followed by a shampoo with Resinol Soap in the morning.

Sample free! Your druggist sells Resinol Soap (25c) and Resinol Ointment (50c) and recommends them, not only for the care of the hair, but for all sorts of skin troubles, pimples, blackheads, sores, boils, burns, or poison oak, poison ivy, sunburn, and itching piles. For free samples of each write to Dept. 2-G, Resinol Chem. Co., Baltimore, Md.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

Copper Shares Sell Higher as Trading Improves

By W. H. ROSS.

STATE STREET, July 16.—Midday—There was not much demand for coppers when the Boston market opened, but it had a good tone and it took but little buying to improve prices. During the first hour Granby advanced substantially, while Isle Royale went up a point. Before noon Osceola had sold 3½ higher. Other issues to rise were Indiana, Superior, Shannon, Utah Consolidated, Copper Range, Calumet & Arizona and North Butte. Butte & Superior, however, sold lower. Trading improved during the morning, and the list took in about everything on the list.

While the copper metal market continues very timid there is a more confident sentiment regarding the position of the metal and it is evinced by the increase in prices for mining company shares.

At a special meeting, United Verde Extension stockholders voted in favor of the proposed reorganization plan, but it will not be made finally effective until after another meeting on August 7.

Prices Open Higher in New York.

There was a better demand for stocks and prices ranged higher when the New York market opened. The buying of Reading and Missouri Pacific was a feature of early transactions. Gains were moderate in character, but persistent, and, after starting these issues with small gains went their prices ahead at the point higher within a few minutes. This helped give the list a stronger tone, and Amalgamated and American Smelting advanced, as did Erie, Atchison, Lehigh Valley, Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific and Southern Pacific. The Hill stocks were strong and Great Northern crossed 126 for the first time in a long while. There was a gain for St. Paul, which is said to have been bought by an important interest.

Trading on the Curb was quiet.

Americans in London were firm. Canadian Pacific seemed to be the favorite. It was sold here in sufficient quantities to balance the foreign buying.

Copper Supply and Mining News.

The foreign visible supply of copper metal has increased 1,746 tons in the last two weeks. The amount in England and France is being transferred to this country. The total is now 50,269 tons. June 30th it was 41,823 tons. The estimated stocks in Italy, Spain and Rotterdam decreased 700 tons. On June 30 they were estimated at 9,858 tons.

It is said that there was a buying movement on the part of foreign consumers in London yesterday, but there was no advance in the quotations of the copper metal market in this country. Producers and big sellers still stated that their price was 17¾ cents a pound for electrolytic. But small sales amount 17 cents can be and to have made in second hands.

Calumet & Hecla sold Butte today that another vein in the Davidson mine has been struck at the 1,900-foot level of the west crosscut and that it is much wider than the one encountered last week. Its three feet of ore is reported as showing better than 7 per cent. copper and high silver values added. It is expected that the crosscut will reach the main vein in about three months.

Another Butte special reads: "It has been more definitely determined that diamond drilling from high ore workings on the Anaconda property has revealed extensive ore bodies in Butte and Superior districts. Options on the Butte & Superior financial interests which have an option on Boston and London control will show the deal and that operations in the Butte & Superior district will soon be resumed.

Calumet & Arizona, net earnings for June are estimated at about $350,000, or at the rate of about $3 a share, while it is believed that the production year will be under 7 cents a pound.

Steel Trade Still Booming.

It is now denied that there has been much falling off in orders for steel products so far this month, and it is understood that the Harriman lines have ordered 25,000 cars, the Pennsylvania & Reading 20,000, and the Union, South Shore & Atlantic 5,000. Other roads are said to have placed orders which have not been made public.

Canadian steel plants are so busy that big orders from the Dominion will probably be placed in the United States, or must be if roads are to get rails on time. It is estimated that expenditures will double tracking and extensions in Western Canada by the Canadian Pacific will be $100,000,000 for the year. This year's total will be about $50,000,000.

The Pennsylvania Railroad has placed big traffic going to it in the last week, including an order for 100 locomotives.

The Western Maryland has ordered 2,100 tons of the Carnegie Steel Company and 2,700 from the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

Financial News in Brief.

On the New York Stock Exchange during the noon hour yesterday only 10,000 shares changed hands, which is close to the low record for the year. This is one indication of thorough neglect of the market on the part of the public.

The Market appeared absolutely unaffected by the Interstate Commerce Commission's ruling on increasing express company rates. It is understood at Washington that the companies will contest the ruling. The commission is holding out for lower rates, things in accordance which it expects will finally lead to reductions in rates. It is believed that Mrs. E. H. Harriman owns more than 100,000 shares of Union Pacific. On this basis, now holds $6,485,500, par value of the Harriman & Co. and $2,000,000 of the stock of the United States Express Company, or $7 per each and 22 per cent. respectively of the entire stock outstanding.

In telling of the extensive crop plans of the Harriman lines, Vice-President Kruttschnitt of Harriman lines, Vice-President Kruttschnitt of Harriman lines along our lines I find crops good in some cases there I have been told by many long experience that prospects for good yields are better than ever before and that call it the lowest of better because the heads are so big."

Bank clearings for the week ended July 13 were $7,000,000 in excess of the previous week, amounting to $4,000,000. Its June revenues totalled $45,000,000, which was $100,000 in excess of the figures for the corresponding 1911 month.

It is reported in Washington that efforts will be made to have the Democratic Party in control of the House of Representatives make provision for the formation of the Flower Republic, Patriotic Commission. Los Angeles have submitted plans for spending funds for their fatherland. The Flower Republic would be a monument to United States a month's income. And yet it has been very hard to have no patriotism.

The burning of matches is increasing. The Diamond Match Company has declared $1,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30th. It has not been for a year since 1903, $1,500,000 was declared, while $6,000,000 is called annually for the trust.

It is estimated that since the United States Steel Corporation began building that the increases have cost it $25,000,000. Wages in the steel industry are steadily climbing. At the Jones and Laughlin plants in Pittsburg the pay of all employees, except tonnage men, has been raised 10 per cent. The raise goes into immediate effect and affects 6,000 men.

A bill introduced in the Chamber of Deputies provides for the issue of 1,000,000 francs of Panama Canal bonds and perpetuity of the funds they obtain there. The object is to cancel Panama's entire foreign debt by twenty years.

Henry Flad, formerly Norfolk & Western president and later chairman of its directorate, died in St. Louis on the night after a long illness.

The Boston News Bureau says: "At present plans for the new Amalgamated Copper Company are well defined, and, unless unforeseen difficulties arise, special cash dividend will be ordered next month with every assurance that original intention of declaring a stock dividend. This special dividend is sufficient to cover the regular quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent., payable in September."

GREEN PARASOL PRIZE OF $100

The time—Next Sunday
The place—Revere Beach.
The girl—"The Lady with the Green Parasol."

What's it all about, ask you.

It's all about "the" lady—and a bag of gold.

How many of you that read this really see things as you go through life?

In walking to the train in the morning to go to business or to go shopping, countless incidents are constantly happening. Do you notice them? If you do, you are different from the average American citizen.

We rush heading, blindly, on our way through life, always here and there but neither observing nor seeing.

It takes a big fire or a railroad wreck to attract more than passing attention from the average American of today.

Test of Observation.

We each think that we are extremely sharp and clever and that there is little going on that we do not see.

But is this actually the case? Decidedly not! The average man or woman sees no more than one-tenth of the things or people about them.

The AMERICAN proposes to test your powers of observation.

If a bag of gold were lying on the street, how many of you would be attracted to each and see it.

That's just exactly what the AMERICAN will find out next Sunday at Revere Beach. But it won't be a bag of gold that your powers of observation will be tested upon. It will be "The lady with the Green Parasol and Matinée Lace" who will mean a bag of gold containing $100.00, for one who identifies her. This woman whose picture will be printed in the AMERICAN several days this week, will be at Revere Beach next Sunday. She will stroll along the beach and will be plainly in evidence until she is identified.

The man, woman, boy or girl who approaches this lady and says, "You are the lady with the Green Parasol," and who has in his or her hand, or plain sight, a copy of next Sunday's AMERICAN will receive $100.00 in gold for this identification.

It looks easy, doesn't it? And it is easy—for those who really See. One hundred dollars is a log of money—it means wealth to many—and to everyone, the possibility of accomplishing longed for things.

Cash Prize of $100.

Have you ever stopped to think how long and laborious a task it is to "save up" $100.00? Just try it and find out.

There won't be any saving, endless, "saving up" process about this $100.00 for identifying "the lady with the Green Parasol."

Just be sure to buy Wednesday's evening AMERICAN and look for the lady's picture. You will find it printed there. Impress her face, figure and dress on your memory and then go to Revere Beach next Sunday and look for her.

Just use your eyes next Sunday. It will mean $100.00 in gold for someone. Why not you?

NANCE O'NEIL AT MAJESTIC

Miss Nance O'Neil—returning to Boston, where she won her fame—in "The Eyes of St. John," supported by the Lindsay Morison Stock Company, scored an artistic success and a personal triumph at the Majestic Theatre.

The Sudermann drama, translated from the German and adapted by Charles S. Wickard, drew crowded houses at both performances. Miss O'Neil was greeted by scores of her old friends and admirers among the Boston playgoers and won many new friends. She was seen at her best and had a sympathetic and appreciative audience.

Miss O'Neil made a neat little speech in response to repeated curtain calls and Mr. Morison's announcement that she is likely to be seen in Boston for several weeks more in other dramas was greeted as a bit of good news.

The stock company supporting Miss O'Neil did especially well. The presentation was finished throughout. As Marikka, the foundling, Miss O'Neil had a part that displayed her dramatic ability to advantage and her portrayal was powerful, yet natural. She seemed equal to the part.

Jane Marbury, as Gertrude, also had many opportunities and made the most of them in a thoroughly interesting fashion. Edward Nannery, as Mr. Brauer, the irascible landowner, fitted nicely into the part. Mrs. Brauer was played by Kate Ross Morison and while she had comparatively little to do, she did that little in her usual clever style.

Howell Hansel was the nephew and made much of the part, as was intended. He shared honors with Miss O'Neil and Miss Marbury for his capable work from beginning to exit.

Maffner, the pastor's assistant, fell to the lot of Wyeley Birch, who contributed a pleasing if not strong performance of the clerk. Edna Oliver was cast for the old gypsy woman. James S. Barrer for the overseer and Frederick Wondiere for the bailiff. The housekeeper. Each furnished good bits of character study.

Fishing Trips.

The steamer King Philip made another record-breaking trip to the fishing grounds yesterday. Excursionists are finding the King Philip a comfortable boat on hot days.

The daily trips of the steamer Sailfish to the fishing grounds are drawing heavy traffic. Many big catches have been reported.

Ocean Trips.

The steamer Dorothy Bradford offers a delightful day's outing with its daily trips to Provincetown. The stop-over gives ample time to visit the old town.

Paragon Park.

The new features that Manager Dodge introduces in the Palm Garden cabaret each week shows he is alive to the situation and knows the desires of those who like amusement while eating. The numerous other attractions at Paragon, which include the aerial circus and the scenic in the lagoon, are drawing big crowds.

Bass Point.

The boat line to Nahant affords a cool and refreshing trip among the islands of the harbor. The sail around the bay is just long enough to stimulate the appetite, which may be easily satisfied at any of the hotels at Bass Point. The shore dinner at Bass Point is more than ordinarily successful.

Norumbega Park.

A new vaudeville show was given in the open air theatre at Norumbega Park yesterday. It was one of the best of the season. The Hiattis, with a musical, comedy and instrumental act, caught the fancy of the crowd from the start, and the other numbers on the bill measured up to them.

Globe Theatre.

The Flying Lenors, in a sensational aerial act, proved the big feature of the bill at the Globe Theatre, yesterday. These performers were as lively in their acrobatic tricks as any seen in Boston vaudeville. There were several other high-class features in the program including some motion pictures.

Bowdoin Square Theatre.

Orpheum Theatre.

The new bill at the Orpheum Theatre yesterday contained several good all-weather vaudeville numbers as well as a long list of new motion pictures.

Scenic Temple.

Durbar Pictures.

The Durbar in Kinemacolor continues at at Tremont Temple. A new week was begun yesterday afternoon.

LIVELY BILL AT B. F. KEITH'S

Lida McMillan, in her comedy sketch, "The Late Mr. Allen," is the big bit of a lively bill at Keith's this week. Playing the part of Bonita Blackstone, who was responsible for temporarily wrecking the marital bliss of Mrs. John Allen, a part taken by Marie Young, she furnishes a laugh every moment in her successful efforts to reunite John Allen, in the person of Cameron Clemens, with his wife.

Another bit is Wheeler Earl and Vera Curtis, who gave a "dozen minutes of smiles" in "the Girl and the Drummer." The drummer getting acquainted with the the girl, who runs a "taxi-typewriter," to a hotel. Muriel and Francis are worthy of a laugh every moment in the program as "Just Two Clever Girls," in a singing specialty.

Tim Gould, as "The Queen of Beauty," the three Farelle sisters, in European gymnastic acts, and Les Copeland, who makes his debut in vaudeville with humorous songs help to fill in the bill, which is completed by the Meistersingers, who, with a brand new program and effective stage scenery and settings, enter upon their third week of their annual Boston success.

Hub Theatre.

A new list of vaudeville entertainers and moving pictures were the features on the program at the Hub Theatre yesterday. The bill was agreeable in every way.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

Detroit is anxious to have the date of the start of the Glidden tour changed from October 3 to September 22. The former date was originally requested with the idea that President Taft would be in Detroit at that time and could be induced to start the tour. Now the desire is to advance the date of the start of the tour at least a week. If it should start on September 22 it would come the day following the close of the Grand Prize race in that city.

The exact itinerary of the tour has not yet been determined upon, but it is generally believed that the route to New Orleans will take in the city of Memphis. The official pathfinder for the trip has not yet been made known if it has been selected. And if the route is to be kept a secret to give possible contestants an adequate idea of what will be encountered in the trip, the pathfinding work should be started immediately.

* * *

The failure of the special committee having charge of the tour will be held in New York city this afternoon.

* * *

There will be no Dead Horse Hill climb this year for the Automobile Club of Cuba, which in years past has staged this climb over the famous grade, has abandoned all idea of repeating the event at present.

At a special election to be held September 3, the voters will be asked to pass upon the proposition of the Wayne County Good Roads road improvements. Under the conditions of the proposed bill, none of this money can be used for anything except macadamized roads, known as main travelled roads, from one centre of population to another. Later, roads leading into such thoroughfares will be improved under the direction of the county commissioners.

The figures for the first six months of 1912 show the number of automobiles in Massachusetts to be greater than for the whole year of 1911. According to the figures compiled by E. J. O'Hara of the automobile department of the Massachusetts Highway Commission there are 40,833 automobiles, 1,027 manufacturers and dealers, 7,205 chauffeurs' licenses issued renewals, 2,702 chauffeurs, 7,771 chauffeurs' renewals and 3,100 commercial licenses. Fees collected amounted to $513,201.67.

DEATHS

PAUL STUCKLEN, a pioneer in the Boston hay and grain trade, is dead at his home, No. 26 Esmond street, Dorchester, aged sixty-five.

JOHN ROGERS, a native of New England and the second oldest surviving settler in Nevada, is dead in Reno at the age of seventy-five.

CAPTAIN THOMAS TAPLEY, the last but one of the nine Tapley brothers, all of whom commanded deep sea vessels, is dead at West Brookfield, Me., aged eighty-seven.

HENRY FINK, chairman of the board of directors of the Norfolk & Western Railroad, and formerly president of that road, is dead at New York.

MORE PICTURES OF HUB FASHIONS

Boston women have proven their fitness for the title of "the most truly fashionable in the country."

There's only one way to silence scoffers and doubters and that is to show them the proof.

When New Yorkers saw fit to assail the "style" of Boston women and to accuse them of being "frumps," the Manhattanites certainly did not expect that the AMERICAN would take up the cudgels in the defence of this charge.

But the AMERICAN does not propose to sit idle and hear the women of Boston and New England characterized as "frumps" all over the United States.

There's only one question involved—the truth or falsity of the charge.

It comes down to a matter of evidence—and nothing but evidence. These proofs have been and are being submitted daily in the columns of the AMERICAN.

The evidence has been furnished by assigning AMERICAN photographers to take pictures at random of Boston's fair shoppers and to let the camera be the judge.

The AMERICAN'S camera men will continue to snap pictures of Boston women shoppers all day today and tomorrow.

This will be the final week's evidence. Hundreds of pictures have been taken on the first three days of each week and many of these are being reviewed each week in the AMERICAN—one each weekday and fourteen each Sunday.

Boston women who were shopping on Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday of last week or the week before, or who goes on Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday of this week is likely to find her picture printed in the evening or Sunday AMERICAN.

The only way to be certain your picture has not appeared is to watch the evening and Sunday AMERICAN.

Any woman whose picture is printed has only to put on the clothing worn when the picture was taken and come to the American Promotion Department, No. 5 Winthrop square, and have a $5.00 gold piece will be handed to her as a recognition of her part in deciding the vexed question.

Your picture may appear any day and when it does it means $5.00 for you.

Watch for YOURS.

COUPON DAY DRAWS CROWDS

It was Coupon Day yesterday at Revere Beach. Thousands availed themselves of the free coupons issued in the Sunday AMERICAN.

The Patten Diving Girls and the obstacle races drew large crowds. Marie Burke, Marjorie McDonald, Helen Kuntzler, The Murray Twins and Mary O'Loughlin performed many aquatic feats. Da Divo took his thrilling jump from eighty feet in the air, and Frank Vigneau and John Everett showed what could be done in life saving.

The free coupons in the Sunday AMERICAN filled many times over the large theatre, where the "Sinking of the Titanic" is given. "The Dream," with its moving pictures and latest songs, was well patronized. "Zeno" is among the drawing cards in the way of moving pictures at the Revere Theatre. The Theatre Comique has an excellent selection of moving pictures. Twelve creole beauties with band and orchestra are taking well at the Scenic Temple.

BLACK BASS BITE TOES OF BATHERS

BOSTON AMERICAN

THE ... 60 AND 62 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, JULY 16, 1912

Largest Circulation in New England, DAILY and SUNDAY

Go to Europe by Way of Boston

You Get a Double Bill for Your Money by This Route Because of Its Great Historic Interest and Picturesque Scenery.

The Boston Chamber of Commerce is filled with the true boosting spirit. It has shown this by sending out thousands of printed leaflets calling attention to the superior advantages in many ways that Boston possesses as a great seaport.

In the circular attention is called to the railroad systems that stretch into this city from the north, west and south. These roads traverse some of the most delightful country in America. People who contemplate going abroad may kill two birds with one stone, as it were, by coming first to Boston.

They get a glimpse of the wonderful scenery of New England—and many travelers declare that it can not be beaten on the other side of the ocean. They have this besides their trip abroad.

It would be surprising if the figures were known how many well educated, traveling people there are in this country who have never SEEN BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND. It is the more astonishing when it is realized that this section of the country from the standpoint of HISTORICAL INTEREST and PICTURESQUE SCENERY is unsurpassed in North America.

As the leaflet of the Chamber of Commerce cites, Boston is well equipped with comfortable hotels and fine stores. There are short rides that may be taken advantage of by persons en route to Europe.

Then the steamers faring forth from this port offer splendid inducements for making the voyage across the water. They may not be quite so FAST as the New York steamers, BUT THEY ARE SAFE.

"The absence of marked fluctuations in the demand for staterooms," says the Chamber of Commerce circular, "compels the agents to offer much more favorable rates, and enables the patron to secure those little conveniences which mean so much to his satisfaction and enjoyment of the trip."

It would amply pay the people who go to Europe, from the South, the West or the North, to make the trip by the way of Boston. More than 10,000 cabin passengers did it last year. There will be more than that number this year.

By going abroad by the way of Boston you get a DOUBLE BILL for the money.

The Publicity of Campaign Expenses Is Assured

The Hearst newspapers felicitate themselves and the politics of the country upon having secured from at least two of the Presidential candidates so clear and explicit a commitment to the publicity of campaign contributions.

Upon this real publicity hangs the hope of clean campaigns and unbought elections.

Woodrow Wilson frankly and explicitly pledges himself to publicity before and after elections through information at all times available.

Colonel Roosevelt, equally explicit, declares himself for publicity BEFORE AND AFTER ELECTIONS, and his New York State campaign manager, Mr. Hotchkiss, goes a step further and proposes to make these contributions public within forty-eight hours after their receipt.

President Taft alone, through Manager Hilles, sidesteps and is evasive in the statement that the law provides the only way "thirty days after the election."

It is good to know where these heads of parties stand. Public opinion will surely compel PUBLICITY BEFORE AND AFTER ELECTIONS and hold the candidates to this rule.

It is necessary. It is a question of great importance to know where each Presidential candidate stands.

It is a question of supreme importance to know WHERE STAND THE MEN BEHIND THE CANDIDATES, for the men who back the candidates are either the great interests or the great people, and the men who give the money ought generally to be known by the people.

Some newspapers—the New York World among them—have been making a mighty stir about the way the money came and the way the money went in the last Presidential campaign. It is of much more importance to know how the money is going to come and go in this campaign.

Publicity—publicity is the thing. It is the searchlight of politics. It ought to be complete, and can only be complete when public opinion compels thoroughness.

Any millionaire or interest can give money to a candidate—millions of it—and give it so secretly through agents that no one may know whence it came. But the essential thing is to know by itemized statements how it is spent in each candidate's camp—how much for literature, how much for stamps, how much for speakers, and if anything for bribery, force out the fact.

Thanks to these commitments made to the Hearst newspapers, the opportunities for doing this are at hand at last, and the indications point to the fairest and the cleanest election that the country has known.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

S. P. C. A. OBJECTS TO UNVESTILATED FEED BAGS FOR HORSES

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—The Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals objects seriously to the use of such feed bags, particularly during the hot weather, as are pulled up over the horse's head, sometimes even to his eyes, and frequently left there for an hour. This is nothing less than cruelty.

The only humane feed bag is one so thoroughly ventilated that the horse can breathe fresh air constantly. Those with a wire screening on the side are as satisfactory as any at present on the market. Even a pail or an open box, though it may involve a certain amount of waste, is better than the old-fashioned nose bag.

The society is warning drivers and team owners that it cannot allow such devices for feeding as must cause positive distress to the horse.

Greatly appreciating your unfailing kindness to us, and yet unwilling to ask more than is our due, I am

Sincerely yours,

FRANCIS H. ROWLEY,
President.

HERSHFIELD

1—TO THE RESCUE! Claude Taft, Claude Wilson and Claude Roosevelt swim to the aid of Rosamond Election. Although at home in the water, Desperate Desmond Prohibition is outdistanced.

2—BACK! Foiled by the three heroes, Prohibition climbs back on the pier.

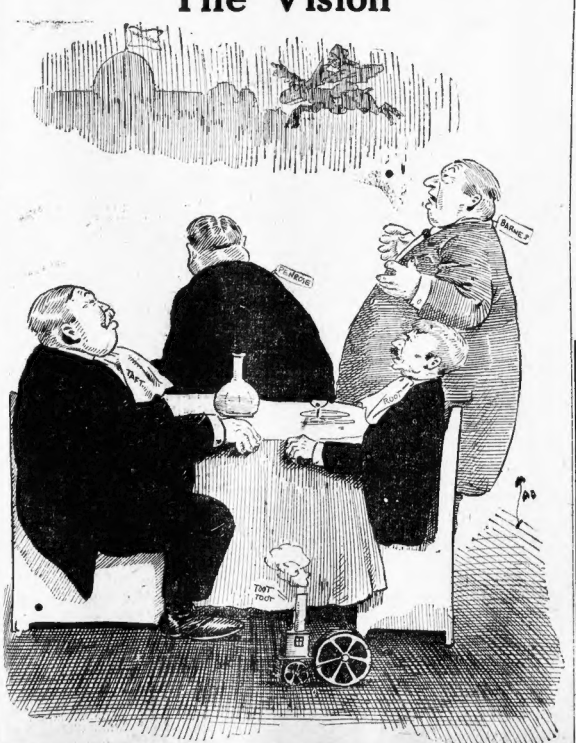
3—HANDY TOGS. Seeing the clothes of Heroes Taft, Roosevelt and Wilson on the beach, Prohibition picks up the garments that appear most in fashion.

4—A TERRIBLE ORDER. Our heroes' bathing suits are now confiscated. It is a plot of Prohib's.

5—LAUGHING STOCKS. "Ha, ha!" loudly laughs Prohib, as our heroes head for home in barrels, "look at the whiskey parties!"

6—THE CAPTIVE! Desperate Desmond Prohibition now approaches Rosamond Election. "You are in me power, gir-r-r-l!" he hisses. But Rosamond believes one of her heroes will yet save her. Tomorrow we shall go on with the story.

The Vision



How far and how fast will he go?

Dr. Parkhurst's Article

—ON—

Conservation of Human Race as an Urgent Need

—AND—

Development of Deserving Men and Women

Written for the American by

DR. C. H. PARKHURST

THERE is one need of the times that the generosity of our large givers seems not to quite to have touched, but a need which, if handsomely met, would go far toward the conservation of valuable material that is now running to waste.

We have latterly learned to realize that our wealth in forests, water power and minerals has been dealt with so carelessly and extravagantly as seriously to impair our resources, and to cause mischief that only the prolonged pursuance of a more cautious policy will avail to repair.

But our new policy of conservation will not be complete till it also extends itself outside the region of our material assets. Very much of the humanitarian work that is being done is done in pursuance of the conservation idea, and is an attempt to prevent values in human bodies, minds and characters from being wastefully sacrificed.

Our thought just now is upon one particular class of people—men and women—whose embarrassed condition is making constant appeal to any man who is known to be at all interested in those who have abilities and ambition, but whose abilities are rendered unproductive and their ambitions disappointed by the impetious limitations of circumstances—people who could do something worth while, and want to do something worth while, but who are so hampered by adverse conditions that they have no chance to get a start.

It takes more steam to start a locomotive than it does to keep it running.

Once a seed has begun to germinate we can pretty confidently count on its becoming a shrub or tree.

The same holds of young humans as of ships, engines and flower seeds, that the rub comes at the beginning.

No sensible person would advise the pampering of a fledgling Things can be made too easy for the young aspirant as well as too hard.

An ambitious fellow can go up a pretty steep grade if he has grit, but he cannot pull himself up a perpendicular.

Enough slant must be put into the climb to give him a scrambling chance to get to the top. And that chance is what a lot of young people—boys and girls—do not have.

We are thinking only of those who have in them the makings of something, who are aware of the fact and who are brave enough to do what they can themselves, but who cannot do it all, cannot make opportunities when there is nothing to make opportunities of—young people who have an art impulse and want to cultivate it; or a genius for mechanics or a pronounced leaning toward teaching, journalism, preaching, no matter what, but needing just enough to help get them on their feet and to put them on the road.

Not to give such ones an initial push means a waste of value; it is neglect to conserve resources more valuable than timber or water supply.

Sometimes five hundred dollars will do it, or even one hundred, if only it be enough to help the wheels to begin to turn.

Or the need may be for money enough to buy a little farm, giving a mortgage on the land as security.

Appeals for just that kind of assistance are reporting themselves constantly.

Who now is the man of large wealth that wants to create an endowment, the income of which shall be applied in the manner proposed?

We have had immense moneys donated in the interest of advanced education, gifts that inure especially to the advantage of those who have already gotten quite a way up the incline, money without stint for the construction of magnificent buildings.

All these bequests are attracted to men and institutions that are already favored, but the poor, struggling, capable and ambitious boys and girls at the bottom of the ladder have, comparatively speaking, very little done for their encouragement.

If they have ability and grit they do not need much, but if they have those qualifications, society, the State, the schools, the world's business, the church, cannot afford to have their powers of effect wasted.

Men and women, capable and confident, are the best product of our civilization, and the recovery of such from helplessness to usefulness is one of the best enterprises to which men of wealth can give their hearts and apply their means.
